Reminds Him of "Wall Street" Man's Banquet for Senators — Utahan Denies He Was There.

IOWAN SAYS FLASKS WERE UNDER TABLE

Howell Asserts Closing of One of 'Great Hostelries' Would Help Dry Up Washington.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Senator Howell, (Rep.) Nebraska, contended that it was "unfair" of President Hoover to call on him to furnish the Department of Justice with "definite facts with time and place" to back up his statements in the Senate last week that the dry law was being violated in Washington.

His assertion that the prohibition law was being violated here but could be enforced if the Chief Executive insisted on it brought a prompt statement from the White House that the President's assumption that he "would not make these charges unless they were based upon definite facts" and his desire to have the Capital made "a model in the country" for enforcement.

Asserting that he was not able to give such facts and that he felt they should not be demanded of a Senator, the Nebraskan, who supported President Hoover's prohibition views during the pre-election campaign, took his first opportunity to reply in the Senate.

"I spoke from what is common knowledge," he said yesterday, "and what is believed outside of Washington to be the conditions inside Washington, the repository of our constitution and the seat of our government."

"I believe conditions here are vastly better than in other cities, but the fact remains that bootlegging thrives in Washington."

Suggests Butler Dry Up Capital.

He suggested that Major-General Smedley Butler, commander of the Marine Post at Quantico, Va., who is now engaged in drying up the village which it surrounds, be brought to Washington for that purpose on the strength of his record as head of the police clean-up campaign in Philadelphia several years ago.

He read from reports of prohibition agents which disclosed, he said, that prohibition was disregarded in some of the leading hotels in Washington.

"If you close one of those great hostilities," he asserted, "you will see real enforcement."

That and a remark by Senator Smoot (Rep.), Utah, reminded Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, of an incident in which a prominent Wall street gentleman served liquor at a dinner he gave for Senators in the Willard Hotel.

Smoot, protesting against Howell's interruption of the tariff debate, had expressed the opinion that there was little bootlegging in Washington.

Smoot Denies Seeing Drinking.

"I ask if the Senator has ever seen any signs of bootleggers around the dinners given by a prominent Wall Street gentleman for the purpose of greeting newly-elected Senators," Brookhart inquired.

"I will say to the Senator I have not, but I ask the Senator if he has?" Smoot retorted.

"Yes, I have, and the Senator did too, on the same night," the lawn replied.

"I do not know what night it was," Smoot went on. "I will say to the Senator that I have never been to any place where I have seen any drinking—any club or anything else, Wall Street or otherwise."

"It was at the Willard Hotel," Brookhart said, "when a gentleman named Fahey from New York invited newly elected and re-elected Senators to a dinner there just to get acquainted with them."

"I was not there," Smoot flung back.

Insists Smoot Was There.

"Oh, yes, the Senator was there," he declared. "I do not know if it."

"I saw the Senator there."

"I cannot recall it. If I was there I did not see any liquor."

"No, the Senator did not get any liquor."

"I did not say get it; I said see it."

"The flasks, as I remember," Brookhart went on, "were under the table with a curtain around it and all one had to do was to reach down and get his flask and put it in his hip pocket."

"The Senator did not do that I know; he told me he did not," the Iowan added as the Senate and galleries resounded with laughter.

Smoot ended the debate by saying again he did not recall the incident.

Senator Howell gave the Senate report of alleged prohibition violations at the Carlton Hotel Club and of drinking at other prominent hosteries.

The debate ended with Senators Josephine (Rep.), Washington, author of the Jones act, and Connally of Texas, a Democratic dry, congratulating Howell.

President Hoover's Argument For Retention of Flexible Tariff

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.

FOLLOWING is the text of President Hoover's statement on the flexible tariff:

In my message to Congress of April 16 at the opening of the special session I gave my views as to broad principles which should be followed in tariff legislation. One of the subjects I then presented was the importance of maintaining the flexible tariff. That principle was advocated over a long term of years by members of all political parties, and it was enacted in the 1922 tariff law. I advocated it at that time and since as a necessity in protection of public interest.

The essential of the flexible tariff is that with respect to a particular commodity, after exhaustive determination of the cost of production at home and abroad by a tariff commission, comprised of one-half of its members from each political party, whose selection is approved by the Senate, then the President should, upon recommendation of the Commission, promulgate changes in the tariff on that commodity not to exceed 50 per cent of the rates fixed by Congress. Under these provisions the President has no authority to initiate any changes in the tariff.

No power rests on the Executive until after recommendations by the Commission. Any change must arise from application directly to the Commission, and his authority in the matter becomes a simple act of recommendation of the Commission on the other hand, he refuses to issue such a proclamation amounting to a veto of the conclusions of the Commission. In no sense, therefore, can it be claimed that the President can alter the tariff at will, or that despotic power is conferred upon the Executive. It has been declared a constitutional procedure by the Supreme Court.

Reasons for Provisions.

The reasons for the continued incorporation of such provisions are more difficult today than ever before. No tariff bill ever enacted has been or will be perfect. It will contain injustices. It is beyond human mind to deal with all of the facts surrounding several thousand commodities under the necessary conditions of legislation and not to make some mistakes and create some injustices. It could not be otherwise. Furthermore, if a perfect tariff bill were enacted the rapidity of our changing economic conditions and the constant shifting of our relations with economic life abroad would render some items in such an act imperfect in some particular within a year.

It is proved by half century of experience that the tariff cannot be reviewed by Congress except in seven or eight years. It is only a destruction of the principle of the flexible tariff to provide that the Tariff Commission's recommendations should be made to Congress for action instead of the Executive. Any person of experience in tariff legislation in the last half century knows perfectly well that Congress cannot reopen single items of the tariff without importation discussions all along the line, without the constant unsettlement of business and the importation of contentions and factious questions to the destruction of other important duties by Congress. Congress has literally hundreds of items in the past refused to entertain any amendment to a tariff except in periods of general periods. It did not regard the employment of Shearer as a secret matter. He was just a point of contact between Shearer and the ship builders.

He was asked what was the purpose of sending Shearer to Geneva. He understood, he replied, that Shearer was to observe the proceedings of the conference and report to the shipbuilders. He received reports from Shearer and had copies made for the companies to their testimony, had not done.

He met Shearer in New York in October, 1927, after the Geneva conference. Shearer then gave an oral report on the conference and the inability of the United States and Great Britain to agree on a cruiser program. He did not recall that Shearer claimed credit for wrecking the conference.

Senator Robinson asked: "Were you acting in a professional capacity when you made the payments to Shearer?"

Hunter objected to his office being called a "lobbying point of contact"—a phrase employed in the examination.

The witness said he saw nothing unusual in the engagement of Shearer.

Anti-American Efforts Defeated.

Although the provisions of the 1922 tariff act, as I have stated in the message, proved to be cumbersome in the method of determining costs of production and can be improved, yet despite this the agriculture industry especially received great benefits through this provision, a notable instance of which was the protection of the dairy industry. That industry would be in a sad plight today if it had not been for the increased duties given under the flexible tariff.

The flexible provision is one of the most progressive steps in the history of tariff making in all our history. It is entirely wrong that there shall be no remedy to isolated cases of injustice that may arise through the failure to adequately protect certain industries or to destroy the opportunity to revise duties which may prove higher than necessary to protect some industries and, therefore, become onerous upon the public. To force such a situation upon the public for such long periods is, in my view, economically wrong and is prejudicial to public interest.

I am informed the principle is supported by the most important of the farm organizations. It is supported by our leading manufacturing organizations. It is supported by labor and consumers' organizations. It has never hitherto been made a political issue. In the last campaign some important Democratic leaders even advocated the increase of powers to the Tariff Commission so as to practically extinguish Congressional action. I do not support such a plan.

"Why were the reports from Shearer sent to you?" asked Robinson.

Reports Came Unsolicited.

"I don't know," the witness replied. He added that they came without any solicitation on his part.

One of the reports, from which Robinson read, referred to various news dispatches from General Ferguson, those in the New York Times.

The reports suggested that Hunter be sure to read "James' big article, which reflects my views."

Shearer said regarding another Times dispatch that it was compiled from an article I had written. He praised also the attitude of the Chicago Tribune and said that the conference had been "admirably" handled by Ambassador Goss, the American delegate.

Robinson and the witness clashed heatedly in discussion of the manner in which the checks for Shearer's services were drawn.

Robinson thought that the procedure was robbery, but Hunter protested that there was nothing unusual about it. He resented, he said, the effort of the Senator to make a mystery out of nothing.

Hunter resumed his testimony at the afternoon session.

Lawyer Discharged Shearer.

Senator Robinson asked who it was that actually discharged Shearer from his position as observer at the Geneva conference.

"I did," replied Hunter.

Robinson read a letter to Shearer, in which Hunter said that "we have completed our commitments to you and you have discharged your obligations to us." This letter is one of the exhibits before the committee.

Robinson asked if the substance of all Shearer's reports from Geneva was not an argument for sea power.

"In a general way they were for parity of this country with other Powers and for a merchant marine," replied the witness.

Hunter said his only interest in the matter was to pay Shearer on behalf of the three companies.

That was the only way in which he was involved in the "commitments" referred to in his letter discharging Shearer.

The issue was before the Senate in a motion by Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee to disallow the bill proposed by Senator Bingham of Connecticut to send from the committee room during consideration of the tariff bill a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

The Utah Senator's statement was made after an assault by Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, on Senator Bingham for employing Charles L. Evans of the Connecticut bar to assist him during consideration of the tariff bill by the committee.

Earlier Harrison had denied reports that Evans had helped him to frame certain provisions of the bill while serving as his secretary.

The issue was before the Senate in a motion by Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee to disallow the bill proposing amendments to the section embodying the provisions concerning among other classes, would make the difference in production costs here and abroad the basis for alterations in duties rather than differences in competitive conditions in American markets as proposed by the House.

His motion was given priority after Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Democratic leader in the tariff contest, had proposed a substitute amendment to eliminate the flexible provision from the bill.

Smoot's argument for retention of the flexible principle followed the same general lines as those set forth in the President's statement.

He contended it was "imperative" that the development of this country that the producer, whether he be an agriculturalist, a manufacturer, or a laborer, will insist upon its preservation.

"And it is eminently fair to the consumer," he said.

Simmons questioned the necessity for a flexible tariff, saying it had not been utilized to any considerable extent, that the Tariff Commission had not acted on several hundred specific applications for rate changes "for the simple reason that they found the rates in the law exceeded differences in production costs," and that "the tariff barons do not divide with their employees."

He cited as reasons for continuing the policy the rapidly changing economic conditions, the need for providing against injustices and the experience of the last century that Congress cannot reopen single items of the tariff without importing discussion all along the line, without the constant unsettlement of business and the importation of contentions and factious questions to the destruction of other important duties of an enthusiast."

He did not regard the employment of Shearer as a secret matter. He was just a point of contact between Shearer and the ship builders.

Allen remarked that the witness had been sufficiently interested to read all of Shearer's reports, which was something that the other parties to the transaction, according to their testimony, had not done.

Allen brought up the matter of the "important secret document" which Shearer claimed to have obtained from him (Adams) and paid by him to Palen, vice-president of the company.

He had handed me and I immediately placed it in the hands of a United States Senator and the press of this nation reflected the power of his voice when it referred to his speech for the cruisers as the greatest speech ever made in the United States for national defense: nor did that Senator hesitate to brand the opposition as traitors.

"Twelve Senators, only opposed to the cruiser bill, or which are recorded in the Department of Justice records with past publications with the communist party."

"In all this there is not a single word of truth, except the fact that Mr. Ochs may then have been in Europe. No such orders were ever issued by him to correspondents."

The witness was not aware that he had been shrouded at such a change but in this connection he was.

Hunter objected to his office being called a "lobbying point of contact"—a phrase employed in the examination.

The witness said he saw nothing unusual in the engagement of Shearer.

Shearer's letter to name was then examined briefly.

Allen read from a report by Shearer in which he said that "American officials referred to 'play to me,' with the result that anti-American efforts at Geneva were defeated. The witness declined to accept Allen's suggestion that Shearer's activity contained 'insidious propaganda.'

"I don't know," said Hunter, adding that he saw nothing unusual in those articles.

" Didn't it thrill you to read that Shearer was going to have 'further information on the British line-p'" asked Allen.

Again the answer was non-committal.

Hunter, to another question, said he didn't hear the word "observer" used at the conference where Shearer was employed.

Allen spoke sarcastically of previous testimony that the shipbuilders merely wanted reports on the "trend" of the conference, but he was unable to get any further illumination from the witness.

Allen read from a report by Shearer in which he said that he had been informed that Shearer was to be compensated for his services by the British Government.

"I believe," Hunter said, "that he was paid $2000 without security."

"I believe," Garner said, "the public is entitled to full information relative to the activities of all lobbyists and lobbying organizations, the sources from which they draw their funds and the interests they represent."

Shearer's letter to Adams was Edward A.

The next witness was Edward A.

Olson, secretary-treasurer and one of the Board of Directors of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co. He was asked about checks in favor of Oscar Olsen. He said the money was drawn by Olsen, an employee of the company, paid over to him (Adams) and paid by him to Palen, vice-president of the company.

The witness said he drew no papers in his possession bearing Shearer's name. He said that he knew nothing about the employment of Shearer to go to Geneva.

The witness said he had instructed his correspondents to "play up the naval situation."

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 25.—Two unmasked men held up the First National Bank at Catlin, five miles south of here, yesterday and escaped with $2300. One of the men kept the officers and two customers covered with a pistol while the other scooped up the money and pinned it in a sack. The robbers bailed out of the bank and drove away.

A posse gave chase. The men were last seen several miles east of Westville and were apparently heading for Indiana.

TATTOOED ROBBER BEATEN IN HOLDUP OF CHAIN STORE

Employees of Grocery Overpower Man Sought Since $600 Was Taken From Guests at Country Club.

ADmits TAKING PART IN 75 ROBBERIES

Explains Marks on Fingers Were Placed There Year Ago, but Changed to Avoid Detection.

The robber with the words "True Love" tattooed on his hands, who had been sought since he and a companion held up 18 guests at the Glen Echo Country Club five months ago, taking $600 without resistance, was beaten into submission last night when he attempted a holdup in a chain grocery.

He implicated himself and another man, later arrested, in a series of holdups which he said had exceeded 75, including the one at the club and another at the Midway and Savings Banks.

The tattooed prisoner is William Kilbride, 19 years old, who is in custody with a blackened eye and bruised face as a result of his holdup at the grocery. The other prisoner, Paul E. Ryan, 26, is at the Deer Street Police Station.

Glen Echo Holdup.

In the holdup at the Glen Echo Club, Lucas and Hunt road, in November, the night of April 17, 18 men and company and railroad officials mostly from other cities, were held up against a wall by two young men who interrupted a poker game in the card room. The robbers, who had seized $600, had stuck them with sticks. The guests were entertained by George E. Howard and his son, Karl S. Howard, executives of the Common-Wealth Steel Co.

One of the robbers, who was obviously bad, had the word "Love" tattooed on the back of one of his hands, one letter on each finger. The proved embarrassing to several persons who were similarly tattooed but innocent of robbery.

The other, who had the same tattoo, was a saucy one, typical of the feathered enameled that has accompanied the weather forecast on Page One of the Post-Dispatch for almost 20 years. Hayes has been promoted to head the River and Flood Division of the Weather Bureau at Washington, having gained much experience on the subject from watching the Mississippi and its tributaries in this district. His successor, Rossen Nunn, arrived from Baltimore today. Hayes was described as a mean between the severe north and the mild and sometimes debilitating South.

Bad Report Hurts City.

In conclusion, he said: "Are the points not enough to defend the climate of your city against its traducers? May I suggest that next summer you tell some of the good points of St. Louis weather, for I assure you the good points outweigh the bad ones."

"The job of retrieving the city's reputation in climatic way is a difficult one. I will admit for there no true adage than the old one about a dog's bad name, but it seems to me it is worth while to endeavor to spread the truth about St. Louis, for there is no question about this hot weather reputation causing untold harm."

"It keeps both visitors and business away. Don't go to the other extreme and claim that we have a summer resort here, for we have not, but be conservative and say we have warm summers, but they are usually more tolerable than the summers in a large part of the interior of the country."

Club Store Holdup.

Alone, Kilbride attempted to hold up an Atlantic and Pacific store at 925 Walton avenue, at 3 p.m. yesterday. He stopped store, Alfred Novelli, near store, threatened him with knife and made him walk into the store and instructed manager to turn over the register.

Novelli did as directed until Kilbride realized he was being held up, realizing he would be suspected, he went to where he had the letters needed to read "Blue Dove."

Arriving here, he and Ryan held up a Midland Savings Bank, 231 Park Boulevard, June 11, taking $100 and $1000 when fired upon by the president, Gregory Dowling.

In a subsequent holdup at the Main Grocery Co., Go-dellow and Maple avenues, Kilbride shot James Brennan, one of the proprietors, in the arm when Brennan reached up a bottle to strike the robber.

Defends St. Louis Weather.

Before coming here, after a career in various parts of the United States and South America, Hayes recalled, he had heard unfavorable reports of the St. Louis climate, which had "the reputation of running you a close second in the way of heat." While he found it neither wise nor true that St. Louis is as cool as some of the Great Lakes or Rocky Mountain towns, he ridiculed the assertion that this is the hottest city east of the Rockies. When it is hot here it is hot all over the Middle West and frequently throughout the country east of the Rockies, he said, but we hear little about high temperatures in other cities.

The false impression about St. Louis heat, Hayes concluded, seems to be spread by St. Louisans, many of whom go to the lakes, the seacoast and the mountains in summer and talk about the heat back home.

Residents of other middle western cities may be at the same resort but keep quiet about their home temperatures, he suggested, giving the impression that they are away for a change of scene, diet and water."

Thermometer readings don't tell the whole story, but humidity must be considered, the Weather Man pointed out, and for some reason he could not explain satisfactorily St. Louis has lower humidity than other middle western and most lake and seacoast cities, which makes the heat more bearable. As to winter, he said the cold makes it sometimes severe, but usually are brief, and most winter days are just bracing; St. Louis, he described as a mean between the severe north and the mild and sometimes debilitating South.

"St. Louis is home to me," said Hayes at the luncheon, "for I have been here several months over 19 years, and that is not a short time in any man's life, especially the life of a member of the Weather Bureau, who is subject to rather frequent transfer. My acquaintances in St. Louis number many, but strange to say I have never seen most of the people I know. The majority of them have been able to use, in one way or another, the information at the command of the Weather Bureau, and police noticed his hands as tattooed in blue letters half inch high.

Witnesses in yesterday's hearing were officers of Eastern banks, from which the loans were obtained, as they testified, through the false financial statement of February, 1925. Objections were made to their testimony on the ground that Ferguson had not been shown, by the testimony, to have had any part in mailing the statement. The Government counsel said this evidence would be furnished.

The bank officials were asked, on cross-examination, as to the amounts of their claims which have been paid by the receivers for the firm. They, with other creditors, have thus far received 46 per cent. They stated also that their banks had sued pending in Circuit Court against the Carleton Dry Goods Co.

The songs were "Just a Memory" and "Love Sends a Gift of Roses" and Peacock testified that before they separated he and his wife used to sing them together.

Still Remembers Words.

"Do you still remember the words of those songs?" Syne asked.

"I do," replied Peacock. "I am ready to repeat or sing the words before the crowded roomful of spectators, if his counsel requested.

But the request, whether it was to be for saying or singing, was never actually made. The District Attorney objected and the Judge ruled that testimony had been excluded on the ground that testimony had been excluded to the harm of the defendant's case. The motion was denied.

Guided by Instruments.

Unable to see outside the cockpit and guided entirely by his instruments, Doolittle took off, flew away from the field, turned around, recrossed it, landed again and came back, then landed a short distance from his starting point.

Some moved to withdraw a juror and have a mistrial declared on the ground that testimony had been excluded to the harm of the defendant's case. The motion was denied.

CAULFIELD PAROLES SLAYER

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 25.—Carl Mitchell, sentenced to 20 years in the Missouri Penitentiary from Ray County on June 27, 1924, for murder, was paroled late yesterday by Gov. Caulfield.

Mitchell, with his brother, Harrison Mitchell, was convicted of killing Pat King, a country store-keeper, in a brawl near Huston, Mo. The brothers were tried separately, Carl being tried in Phelps County on change of venue. Harrison got only 10 years and was released under the prison merit system last Dec. 8. The Penal Board said Carl deserved a parole as he was no more at fault than his brother.

of Cruelty.

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 25.—
The Los Angeles Times says Lewis
Stone, screen actor, has filed a divorce suit against Florence Oakley, and will appear in Superior Court here for hearing next Monday. The fact that Stone had sued his wife, in private life Florence Pryor Stone, remained a secret until yesterday when it was learned he filed the action July 13, last, under the name of Shepard Stone. When Stone and Miss Oakley were married in 1920 he used his middle name, Shepard, on his marriage license to escape publicity.

The newspaper says Stone asked for a divorce on the ground of extreme cruelty, charging his wife lacked consideration for his feelings, was uncongenial and was subject to fits of anger which interfered with his work and caused him anguish of mind.

TRUCK KILLS MAN ON SEVENTH BLVD.;
CHAUFFEUR HELD

William J. McCarthy Accused of Driving Away After Hitting Pedestrian Four Feet From Curb.

William J. McCarthy, 31 years old, 5233 Wren avenue, a chauffeur for the Columbia Terminals Co., is being held by the Coroner on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident after a truck driven by him struck and fatally injured a man who before he died said he was Daniel McCarthy. The accident occurred in front of 2115 Seventh boulevard, at 7:15 o'clock last night.

According to witnesses, Daniel McCarthy was standing within four feet of the west curb of Seventh boulevard when the truck, occupied by two men, traveling north, swerved to the left side of the street and struck him. The driver continued north, driving through a "stop" signal at Russell boulevard. Witnesses noted that the truck was painted yellow and bore the name of the Buck Stove & Range Co.

Indury disclosed that the Columbia Terminals Co. operates trucks for the Buck Company. At the Terminals Co. garage, 123 South Fourteenth street, officers found a light delivery truck, like the one which killed McCarthy, and which they were informed had been turned in at 7:40 p. m. On the left fender was blood and hair. Learning that William McCarthy was the driver, officers went to his home and arrested him.

Denies Striking Anyone. McCarthy denied striking anyone. Police later arrested his brother, Charles, 1452A Monroe street, who told police, they reported, that he was riding with his brother at the time of the accident. They had visited the home of their sister in South St. Louis, where William McCarthy drank two bottles of beer. Charles is quoted by police as saying he told William he had struck a man, but the brother responded, "Shut up and sit tight," and drove on. William McCarthy, who had a half pint of whisky on the truck during the afternoon, according to his brother, was examined at City Hospital. Physicians said he had been drinking.

Daniel McCarthy died at City Hospital at 2:10 a. m. today of a fracture of the skull. He was unable to give information concerning himself, other than to tell his name. He was about 55 years old and dressed in laborer's clothing. Another Killed by Truck.

Clifford R. Terry, 33, a chauffeur, 6168 Crescent avenue, was killed at 4:15 p. m. yesterday when struck by a truck while attempting to cross Lucas avenue at Third street.

Robert Armstrong, 1106 St. Louis avenue, the driver, was making a left turn into Lucas avenue. Terry, after being struck, fell beneath the wheels of the truck. His chest was crushed and his skull fractured. An inquest will be held.

Fred Foan, 50, a salesman, 7202 Lyndover avenue, Maplewood, was killed and a woman and a child were injured when an automobile driven by Foan collided with another machine driven by Andrew W. Grant, 5512 Delmar boulevard, at Tower Grove and Chouteau avenues at 3 p. m. yesterday. A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today.

Fran was driving south in Tower Grove avenue when his car collided with Foan's machine. Foan died at Barnes Hospital several hours later of a fracture of the skull. Mrs. Veronica Evenhoh, 4624 Morganford road, and her nephew, William Mueller Jr., 3, 3637 Pennsylvania avenue, riding with Foan, were cut and bruised.

Fran Active in Charity Work. Foan, who represented the John B. Ellison Woolen Co., Philadelphia concern in the St. Louis territory, was an active charity worker in Maplewood. He was president of the "Fats and Loans," an organization whose members play an annual baseball game, donating the proceeds to charity, and was past grand knight of De Soto Council, Knights of Columbus. At the time of the accident he was taking his niece to St. Mary's Hospital to visit a relative, who is ill. Funeral services will be Friday morning from St. Luke's Catholic Church to Calvary Cemetery.

Fran was candidate for Councilman at Maplewood at the last election and was defeated.

Police Sergeant Eugene Martineau, Page Boulevard District, suffered injuries of the back at 4 p. m. when struck by a truck driven by Clarence Goode, a Negro, 5000 Main street, while directing traffic in front of the Masonic Home, 5551 Delmar boulevard. Following treatment Sergeant Martineau was taken to his home, 6122 Crescent avenue.

According to a dispatch from Hannibal, Mo., Mrs. Herman Burkhardt, residing on Sarah street, St. Louis, is in a serious condition at a hospital there with a crushed chest and fractures of both legs suffered yesterday when an automobile driven by her husband plunged into the shallow water of South Fabius River, three miles south of Taylor, Mo., after leaving the road at a sharp curve.

Doran Tells W. C. T. U. Prohibition Policy Is Sound and Will Be Maintained.

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 25.—Dr. James M. Doran, Federal Commissioner of Prohibition, today attacked as "inconsistent" business leaders who regard liquor drinking an evil for their employees but who feel the law should not interfere with their own drinking. In an address prepared for delivery before the annual convention here of the National Economic Council, The Business Union, Dr. Doran said it was encouraging to note that among those prominent in business "there is a growing conviction that they have individual responsibility as leaders and the laws . . . should be respected and observed in good faith" by all alike.

"It is my conviction, and that conviction is based on all the data that I can assemble, that our national prohibition policy is sound and will be maintained."

He said he knew of no economist who having studied the problem did not believe the Government's policy has "brought tremendous economic advantages." He likewise stated he recalled no prominent business leader who had failed to note the benefit prohibition had brought "in the social lives of the people and who has not also noted the good accomplished by the prohibition laws in direct proportion to the degree of enforcement and observance in the particular community."

The chief Government enforcement officer complimented the W. C. T. U. for its effort to make known the "good that arises from voluntary obedience to laws" resulting from "crystallized opinion of the majority of the public."

"The good is accomplished," Dr. Doran asserted in admitting that errors are made in administering the work of the Prohibition Bureau, "far outweighs any minor human errors and mistakes" which he said were inevitable occasionally.

Stating that disagreements as to methods and procedure always would arise, he said "advances in prohibition law enforcement must be made by people who are friendly to the law and its purposes and who will deal constructively with the details of its administration."

The obligation of State and Federal Governments is "equally binding." Dr. Doran said the Federal Government must give its attention to major matters of the character germane to the operation of the central Government machinery," he explained, "and the states must more and more take care of the localized violations."

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR LOUIS MARSHALL

No Eulogy at Service for Lawyer and Leader of American Jewry.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Funeral services were held yesterday for Louis Marshall, leader of American Jewry, philanthropist and lawyer, who died in Switzerland on Sept. 11.

Leaders in all walks of life were among the thousands who gathered inside and outside the Temple Emanu-El in Fifth avenue, where the simple services were held.

There was no eulogy, only a prayer, the singing of hymns, and a brief musical program.

The casket was brought in the casket into the synagogue from the chapel where the body had lain in state since its arrival yesterday on the Leviathan. An honor guard of police officers walked alongside of the casket. Former Gov. Smith and Lieutenant-Governor Lehman led the honorary pallbearers.

The unstained oak casket, covered by a blanket of blood-red roses, was placed on a plain wooden stand at the altar dias. A small wreath at the base of the stand was the only other floral piece.

Dr. H. G. Eneovsky, Dr. Samuel Schulman and Dr. Nathan Kahn, the three rabbis of the Temple, conducted the services as they ended, with the reading of the twenty-third Psalm, the pallbearers lifted the casket to their shoulders and slowly walked out of the dimly lit temple while the organist played Mendelssohn's Funeral March.

The crowd, estimated at 25,000 in the immediate vicinity of the synagogue, stood with bared heads as the cortège passed down Fifth avenue into Sixty-first street and across the Queensboro Bridge to Long Island.

At the Salem Fields Cemetery, with only brief ceremony, the body of Mr. Marshall was lowered into a grave alongside of that of his wife.

To Evacuate Ehrenbreitstein.
MAINZ, Germany, Sept. 25.—The French high command announced yesterday that Ehrenbreitstein will be evacuated Nov. 30 at the latest. This will place the second zone of occupation completely back under German sovereignty.

HOW TO PROTEST AGAINST UNJUST BRIDGE TOLLS

On Written Complaint Secretary of War Is Authorized to Investigate Alleged Exorbitant Charges.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—If users of the new bridge across the Mississippi River at Cairo believe that the tolls announced by Harry E. Bovay, president of the Cairo Bridge Terminal Co., are not "just and reasonable," they can appeal to the Secretary of War for reductions, War Department officials said today.

Under the general bridge law of 1906, the Secretary of War is authorized to investigate complaints of alleged exorbitant bridge tolls and see just and reasonable rates. Two Texas communities have made such protests recently and reductions have been ordered. In one instance the bridge company accepted the Secretary's reduction, but in the other the bridge company obtained a temporary injunction against the Secretary's rates and the question is now in litigation. Supervision of tolls by the Secretary of War extends only over toll bridges constructed after March, 1906.

Written Protest Necessary.

War Department officials would not comment on the rates announced by Bovay, saying that they could investigate only formal complaints. If any group of citizens, civic or business organizations, or written protest to Secretary Good, official word, the Secretary will instruct the chief engineer to cause an investigation by the district engineer with jurisdiction over the Cairo area. The Secretary would act upon the reports of the district engineer and the chief engineer.

The two Texas communities which protested against high bridge tolls were Denison and Gainesville. At Denison protests were filed with the Secretary against tolls charged by the Texas Red River Bridge Co. After an investigation, the Secretary accepted the reduction, but the company countered with an injunction against the proposed rates. The company is involved in other litigation, officials said.

Gainesville objected to tolls charged by the Gainesville Red River Bridge Co., and the bridge company accepted the reductions proposed by the secretary.

Only Two Reductions.

The Secretary of War does not investigate toll charges on his own motion. A complaint must be filed. So far as recent records show, only the two protests have brought reductions.

The American Association of State Highway Officials has repeatedly protested against inadequate toll supervision. In November, 1926, the association adopted several resolutions, covering bridge tolls. The resolutions said: "Tolls collected should not exceed such as will meet the actual needs of operating and maintaining costs and yield a prescribed reasonable annual return on the actual cost of the bridge. Any amount in excess thereof should be deposited in a special trust fund and made available by the State for the purchase of such privately owned toll bridge. The State should be given the right and power to acquire such privately owned toll bridge at any time from the time such bridge is open to traffic and on a basis that is fair alike to the owners and the State."

Conditions of Franchise.

Under the franchise granted to Bovay in 1926 for the Cairo bridge, the states cannot acquire the bridge at its actual cost until after 20 years of operation. If the states seek to acquire the bridge before that time they must pay the seller's price or institute condemnation suits. In either instance, the state probably would have to pay for "going value" and prospective profits.

The late Senator William B. McKinley and Representative E. E. Denison of Illinois, both Republicans, were effective in getting the Cairo bridge franchise for Bovay. Denison is the chairman of the bridge subcommittee of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.
SPORTSMAN'S PARK, Sept. 25.—The Cardinals defeated the Cincinnati Reds this afternoon and made a clean sweep of the series of three games.

Frankie Frisch still was nursing a lame leg, and Seipp was at second for the Cardinals.

About 500 persons apparently had nothing else to do, so attended the ball game.

The flag was at half mast, out of respect to Miller Huggins, the Yankees manager, who died today.

Magerkurth and McCormick were the umpires.

The score was 8 to 0.

CARDINALS—Gelbert singled to center. Grabowski sacrificed, Kopl to Kelly. Ford threw out Douthit. Orsatti filed to Allen.

FIFTH—REDS—Allen was safe when Bottomley dropped Gelbert's throw. Sukeforth was safe on Gelbert's fumble. Ford filed to Hafey. Critz hit into a double play. Gelbert to Seipp to Bottomley.

CARDINALS—Rixey went in to pitch for Cincinnati. High popped to Ford. Seipp singled to center. Gelbert filed to Allen. Grabowski singled off Stripp's glove. Seipp stopping at second. Douthit walked filling the bases. Orsatti singled to center, scoring Seipp and Grabowski. Douthit stopping at second. Wilson doubled to right, scoring Douthit and when Zitzmann's throw to the plate bounded past Sukeforth, Orsatti scored and Wilson went to third. Bottomley popped to Critz. FOUR RUNS.

MICKEY WALKER TO BATTLE HUDKINS FOR MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE

CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT TO TAKE PLACE OCT. 29 AT LOS ANGELES

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Ancil Hoffman, promoter, announced here today that Mickey Walker would defend his middleweight title in Los Angeles Oct. 29 against the challenge of Ace Hudkins, Nebraska wildcat, who last night won the right to meet the champion by registering a technical knockout victory over Joe Anderson of Kentucky.

Hoffman said he would promote the championship battle jointly with Jack Doyle, of Los Angeles. He said he expected the fight to draw a gate of $200,000 with the price of tickets ranging from $2 to $15.

Walker and Hudkins met for the title in Chicago last year, the champion winning by a close decision.

Hoffman Stops Anderson.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska wildcat, stepped to the front in middleweight fistland today by knocking out some of Joe Anderson's bridge-work in the sixth round of their elimination bout.

The wildcat belted the Kentucky galloper groggy in the first five rounds of their scheduled 10-round bout, and loosed a right hand-thunderbolt to Anderson's face in the sixth. The blow uprooted a couple of molars, and the referee called it a technical knockout.

Anderson came to terms suitable to Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, last week, but the contract was turned down on the grounds that the Nebraskan still faced Anderson, who had won a decision over him a year ago. Kearns, insisting that the floor of the Kentuckyian was the legitimate claim to the contender's corner, if Hudkins did that, he said, Walker's signature was guaranteed.

Ace did as instructed. He tore into Anderson's midsection in the first round and worked up. By the third stanza, the Kentuckyian slowed down. In the fourth he took two counts. The first, resulting from a solar plexus jab, ran to eight and the second from a solid one on the chin, went one more. The sixth round was fought. Hudkins jarred a short right to Anderson's jaw, and the latter swung on the ropes. He did not rebound, and the referee raised Hudkins' hand.

Wrigley Spikes Report That He Will Give Bonus

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The Chicago Cubs, back after a visit to Aurora, Ill., for an exhibition game, were greeted with the news here today that William Wrigley, owner of the club, had spiced the rumor that he would give a special bonus to his players for winning the National League flag.

Officially recognizing the rumor for the first time, Wrigley said that the players were well paid and expressed surprise that such a report should gain circulation.

KINSEY ENTERS SEMIFINALS OF PRO NET MEET

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, national amateur doubles champion, with his brother, Bob, five years ago entered the semifinal round of the American professional tennis singles championship at the West Side Stadium today.

Playing before fewer than 200 spectators, Kinsey defeated Edwin Pohlker, lanky Philadelphia pro, by scores of 6-4, 6-2, 6-1, in the quarter finals.

Although never in the slightest danger, Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovak player, was forced to play his best tennis to defeat Phil Bagby of the Rock Hills Tennis Club, Kansas City. Kozeluh, who lost only one game in two previous matches, won by scores of 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Vincent Richards, former American Davis Cup star and the present defending champion, had no real difficulty in defeating Wallace F. Johnson, veteran coach of the University of Pennsylvania tennis team, in the quarter finals, at 6-3, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Ellen N. raced up strongly in the first quarter, taking the lead from Patti Louise; continued to draw away and won with ride, pleased. Paul Loeffelholz headed by the winner and held favorite Giri Sale. Later raced evenly and saved ground but could never improve her position. Tor Hallberg, in mishap, was out.

MILLER HUGGINS,
MANAGER OF NEW YORK YANKEES, DIES

Harper, Wally Schang, Mike McNally, Joe Bush, Sam Jones, Jack Scott, Elmer Smith, Joe Dugan and Herb Pennock. These recruits from Fenway Park helped Huggins to win three straight pennants in 1921-22-23.

The Yanks had to wait until 1923, the year the Stadium was opened, for a world's championship, however.

The Yanks failed to win a fourth straight for Huggins in 1924, and still the way to seventh place in 1925. Huggins silenced his critics and cemented his personal reputation as a builder by regaining the top in 1926 to begin a reign of three years with players he picked from the sand lots or the minors, and himself developed in the Yankee camp.

Huggins was of the conservative type of manager. "A bit of a crab," those who did not know him well called him, but his players knew better and, after a stormy start with some of the Yankee "temperments," Huggins came through to absolute control of his team. He never asked him for a smart capable leader with clever strategy in a crisis. As the years went on, the number of those who knew Miller Huggins increased and, with this increase, came on in the number of friends.

As long as he didn't drag "the wife and kiddies" into it, he is entitled to a break.

See where 1500 guests have stuck their feet under the masonry head coach went into the lobby with his assistants, Walsh and Flanagan, to plan the afternoon work.

Officials who will handle the St. Louis-Davis-Elkins game are as follows: Referee, Ghee (Dartmouth); umpire, Gould (Army); manager, Kearns (De Pauw); field judge, Barker (Chicago).

The Billiken first team in yesterday's practice consisted of Cecil Mueller, 155-pound sophomore from Madison Lake, Minnesota, at center. The guards were Gene Schwartz and Eddie Brown. Max Newton, 180-pound sophomore who has been replacing Brody at guard because of his 30-pound weight advantage, watched practice from the sideline; but did not appear in uniform. Newton has been suffering from a cold, but is expected to be back in uniform today. Ander's two war linemen, Titus Cornell and Fred "Flirpo" Joseph, worked at the tackles. Vic Dauber and Lyle Drury, two veterans, worked at the ends. The backfield consisted of Charley McKinney at quarterback, Tony Kimmell and Charley Eaton, two veterans, at the halves, and Captain Joe Lintzsch at fullback. The Billiken line, substituting Newton for Brown at guard, has an average of 187 pounds from tackle to tackle and is the heaviest for the last several years.

Backfield prospects in the Billiken squad have never been better. Charlie McGinnis has a wide assortment of backs with which to work. The first string backs are all veterans with the exception of Charley McKinney and he may be considered such on account of his one year's experience on the Notre Dame team. McKinney has been called the answer to a coach's prayer for so far he has shown plenty of football ability.

Another good backfield combination on the Billiken squad is the "Pony" backfield of Saul Naidorf or "Shakes" Gazelle at quarterback, Joe Abrahams and "Fido" Murphy at the halves and Bill Salinsky at fullback. Naidorf and Gazelle are lettermen but Abrahams and Murphy and Salinsky are sophomores. All three have shown considerable promise. Murphy and Salinsky are probably the fastest pair of halfbacks on the squad. Salinsky, although he is not playing regularly, will be a valuable substitute for Captain Lintzsch.

The Billikens have another good quarterback in Carl Pike and plenty of backfield material in John De Christopher, Jules Farkas, Jack Joyce, Joe Maxwell, Bob McCoolie and Jim Stringfellow.

O'Flaherty Named As President of "Prep" Circuit

Athletic Director O'Flaherty of St. Louis U. High, was chosen president of the Preparatory League last night at the first meeting of the league officials this year. Other business included the drawing up of the tennis schedule, which for the first time since the organization of the circuit, is to be played in the fall instead of in the spring. St. Louis U. High, which had previously indicated its desire to withdraw from the tennis competition, will compete along with the other league schools.

Dispensing with the usual three officers, but two officials were elected for the coming season, Coach R. P. Hughes of Country Day being chosen as secretary and treasurer. Hughes and O'Flaherty succeeded Major Garretson of Western, Brown of St. Louis U. High, and Brother John Messmer of McBride, the retiring executive.

The McBride, the defending tennis champion, which is the title of the members of last season's title winning combination, seems almost certain to retain the honors in the court game, will open against C. B. C. Oct. 8. The Colonanders will meet Country Day two days later, Western on Oct. 12, and conclude the season against St. Louis U. High, Oct. 15.

Cubs Win Exhibition, 16-4

By the Associated Press.

AURORA, Ill., Sept. 25.—The champion Cubs gave a demonstration of their prowess before a record crowd of 5000 fans here yesterday by trouncing an amateur semi-pro team, 16 to 4, in an exhibition game. Hack Wilson of the Cubs got homer in the second inning, while Gabby Hartnett, who caught, also sailed a ball over the fence.

Winter League to Develop Rookies Formed on Coast

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—FORMATION of the California Winter League, baseball circuit controlled by the three San Francisco Bay members of the Pacific Coast League, was announced today by George A. Putnam, Secretary of the San Francisco Seals.

The league, organized for the purpose of developing young players, will consist of six teams, all of whom will be affiliated with the San Francisco Seals.

The example, he may say something like this: "Don't you think it would be better for all of us if you went into the clubhouse and took off that uniform?" And what a world of anger, sarcasm and disappointment he can put into that simple query.

Used Entirely New Scheme

0 NLY this year, my friends tell me, Mack resorted to a unique way of admiring his players. It seems that the boys had not been "getting their proper respect," as Connie put it. Also, he felt that they were too prone to accept the "chophosity" of their friends—"treating." I'm told he called it.

The A's were tendered a luncheon in Toledo where they played an exhibition game. When it came time for the speeches, Connie Mack, the "Old Man," Which, I submit, mirrors for the public on the outside the respect, admiration—yes, love, which his players hold for the senior manager in the big leagues today. When I was a boy it was more or less common for lads in their teens to call their dad "Old Man."

And go it with players on the Athletics. To them, Connie Mack is the "Old Man." To outsiders he'd better be Mack. Mack accorded me a gentleman of his fine qualities. Otherwise, the baseball boys won't like it.

Connie Mack, back in 1905, when I first saw him sitting on the bench, reminded me of a "sphinx."

Later, I came to look upon him as a "schoolmaster." I found out, as a player under him, that he had all the kindly, yet stern qualities of that teacher.

Don't think that Mack "spares the rod" with his players. He can mete out discipline with an iron hand. But because he understands human nature better than any other manager in baseball, in my judgment, he has different ways of dealing with players of varying temperament.

How Connie Treated Men

DONT want to be telling any tales out of school, but I feel that it will be perfectly proper for me to discuss a general way, without mentioning names, some incidents that came under my personal observation.

One has to do with a player who had been staying out late at night.

I am sure that Mack has no "snoots" with his club. He just has that uncanny way of knowing when one of his athletes is misbehaving. At the daily meetings, he fixes his eyes on you, there must be an answer. The next day Connie has all the dope. I guess he pieces together the answer to a series of questions he shots at different athletes.

There have been many, many stories printed about how Mack handles the erratic Rube Waddell. I was not with the club when the great southpaw was pitching for the A's and I shall not give any of these tales second hand.

This I will write, however. From my observation, there was not another man in baseball who could have gotten out of Waddell's left arm as easily as Connie did.

Anyhow, one time the A's were leaving for another city on an early morning train, say about 7:30 a.m. Mack overheard one of his boys asking the traveling station what time that blasted train left.

"Why our train will leave at 7:30," cut in Connie in his quiet way. "Do you think you'll get in tonight in time to make it?"

That player knew that Manager Mack knew he had been keeping late hours. It was the best possible way to turn him away from dangerous paths.

Has Plenty of Cunning

ACK is cunning. I remember one night in Cleveland when the A's manager was standing in front of the hotel at which the club was quartered. A player hopped out of taxi and stopped to exchange greetings.

"Well good-night, Mr. Mack," the

McBride Plays Soldan, While C. B. C. Faces Cleveland Tomorrow

By Robert W. Herr

The probable starting lineups of McBride and C. B. C., the first Prep League teams to swing into action this season, indicate that heavy, and, for the most part, green athletes will represent these two schools in the initial contests tomorrow. McBride draws the stiffer assignment, the Colonanders being carded to meet the championship Soldan eleven at the High School Stadium at 3:15 o'clock, while C. B. C. opposes Cleveland on the Cleveland campus at 3:30 p.m.

After watching his first team tear through the seconds for four touchdowns in the tentative starting lineup, Pfeifer and Kaveney, letter man and squad man, are due to start at the halves, with Grunby at quarterback and Carter, a 1928 guard, at fullback. The tackles will be handled by Capt. Axtell and Burger, experienced linemen, and McDonough, also a letterman, is to play center. Daugherty and Cunningham will take care of the guard positions, while Coach Toddy Kamp will pick his wingmen from among Boyle, Buffe and Venari.

A lengthy list of capable reserve players makes it almost certain that Coach Kamp will use at least other three backs as lettermen. The line is still a bit of a problem, but O'Reilly announced his probable starting forward wall as consisting of Kavaney, Daugherty at left end; Lutz and R. Guenther at left tackle; Braunschwig, left guard; Gould, center; Joe Bardenheier, right guard; Sandweg, right tackle, and Schmidt or Kelly at right end. All of these men are green and inexperienced, but their weight should make their work more effective. It is likely that the greater part of the squad will break into tomorrow's tussle.

Baldock was slated to sail for England today while Brown was making preparations for a trip to Mexico.

The McBride eleven will be better provided with veteran material,

WADE KILLEFER TO MANAGE 1930 REDS, IS REPORT

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 25.—The Enquirer today says that reports were current here that Sidney Well, wealthy young Cincinnati business man, would announce shortly that he had acquired sufficient stock in the Cincinnati baseball club to give him control.

It became known recently that someone had been buying up large blocks of stock in the club at price far above the par value. It is assumed, the paper says, that Well and his associates will walk into the club headquarters with at least $50 shares, enough to assure their control, and take charge of the club.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — Tommy Loughran, pride of the Pennsylvanians, and Jack Sharkey, the Boston belter, moved into New York today for the final outdoor audience to be granted heavyweights by the metropolitan fight faithful this season.

Heavier than ever before, the former king of the light heavyweights eagerly sought the opportunity of showing his wares against Sharkey. The leonine tar was equally anxious to get his gloves on the the debonair Loughran whom he freely confessed is one fighter made to his very order. The encounter with the threshed out over the 15-round route tomorrow night in the Yankee Stadium.

Victory will have more than ordinary significance to both batters since Phil Scott, the massive Briton, silenced for the time being at least the powerful guns of Victorio Campolo. The stage is now set for a three-cornered series, ending next winter on the sandy shores of Miami, between Scott, Max Schmeling, and the winner of tomorrow night's rumpus with the ultimate victor the successor to the retired Gene Tunney as heavyweight champion.

Sharkey Betting Favorite. Betting odds favor Sharkey to accomplish the downfall of the adonis of the Quaker City at a ratio of about 6 or 7 to 5. Indications were that these odds would hold at ringtime. Having watched Loughran box a victorious swathe through the 175-pound division, the experts can't seem to see how the Philadelphia's light punches are going to stand off the rushes of the heavyweight who don't hit so often chiefly because they don't hit hard.

Those same experts figure that Sharkey will better Loughran about the body in the early rounds and then finish him when Tommy has lost his speed.

Another school of experts thought, however, recalls the fact that the light heavyweights for years have tried to slow Loughran down with body punches. Leo Lomski, the punishing hitter from Aberdeen, Wash., had Loughran on the floor twice but the sleek light heavyweight champion got up to dance and box his way to a decision victory. Against the slugger, Jimmie Braddock, he scarcely landed a telling blow in a 15-round titanic bout.

Say He Has Found Punch. Tales from Harvey's Lake, where Loughran trained, said Tommy had found a punch with the extra poundage he is carrying these days but if the Philadelphian does otherwise than to box with Sharkey there will be considerable surprise on the little island.

Jimmy Maloney, St. Louis boxer, of California, will meet Armand Eustache, Tom Heeney, the New Zealand blacksmith, battles Young George Hoffman of New York, in the opening 10. Jack Gagnon, Boston, and Lou Barla, New York, are matched over the six-round route.

Fairmount Officials Named. Michael Connor, long experienced in the proper policing of race tracks, will be in charge of police force during the fall meeting at Fairmount Park. It was announced by Robert S. Eddy Jr., general manager of the Fairmount Jockey Club, today.

Connor will have as his first assistant, Henry Bishop of East St. Louis. Both Connor and Bishop have served in like capacities at previous meetings at the East Side course.

Whitley Brooks, for many years identified with the Eddy-Cattarich organization, arrived yesterday and immediately began the supervision of arrangements of the mutual department. He is being assisted in the preliminaries by E. A. Defries. Brooks is a native of Madison County and until 15 years ago resided in the "Trotters." This will be his first visit to his former home in many years.

Schools Ban Broadcasting. Several of the big schools of the South have announced there will be no radio broadcast of their games this year.

FAVORED TO BEAT LOUGHAN

By Melvin D. Fulcher.

That the Fairmount track aids the State of Illinois through the annual license taxes it is shown when Robert S. Eddy, general manager, paid the Director of Agriculture $35,000 for a 14-day license to conduct the fall race, to supremacy with such rivals as Glenview Rover, Irish Buddy and Fairlawn Riffle. The race is the eighth event. A large silver loving cup will be presented to the owner of the winning dog.

Disearding his last engagement, in which he finished fifth behind the fleet-footed Concession, Louis Meadows, a Rainbow Kennel entry, looms as a strong contender on the strength of his performances in two preceding races, one of which he captured in the fast time of 0:26 1-5 and the other futurity in which Paddock Judge beat him by a slender margin. Irish Side, Spirit J. and Kempton have demonstrated several times that they can negotiate the futurity distance in 0:29 3-5 or better.

The tenth race, another futurity, also brings together a fast, clever field, with Bootlegger, winner of the recent Montana Derby, and McGurk, another Montana speedster, which achieved wide renown in inter-city match races last year, opposing such Madison favorites as Concession, Decision, Coda de Ora, Dry Land, Spalding Bowser and Ares. In his only previous start of the present Madison meeting, McGurk ran into Disaster at the first turn, the resulting spill forcing both dogs out of contention.

Three other futurities, race fifth on the card, will provide the distance feature. Listed among the entries is Wednesday, a Freeman Kennel pup, which lost to Valencia by a head and to Prince Royal by a nose in two recent engagements at this strenuous distance.

White Lawn, Myrl Peseck, Prince Royal, Chance Taker and The Lister are among the crack routers booked to vie with the Freeman entry.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—The Assembly of the League of Nations today adjourned its tenth annual session.

Delegates from more than 50 nations hailed the meeting as the most constructive and progressive since its 10 years' existence.

The Assembly unanimously agreed on the spirit of conciliation and mutual concession which prevailed during this Assembly marked a step forward in the movement for international peace and security.

The Assembly disposed of the few remaining subjects on its program by approving committee reports. The most important subject discussed was the international bank to be established in connection with the Owen D. Young reparations plan. Delegate Motta of Switzerland, president of the committee, explained his position on the proposal to establish a close connection between the separation bank and the League.

Proposal Withdrawn.

This proposal was withdrawn by Norway and Denmark when opposition was offered by France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Japan. These declared this move would dangerously complicate an already complex situation. It was intimated that the United States might be damaged from co-operating in the separation if the proposal was passed.

The Budget Committee presented a report recommending a budget of $5,600,000 for 1920. This entails an increase of $10,000 over estimates by the Secretary-General.

After the budget report the Assembly heard the Constitutional Committee's account of how it disposed of the Chinese proposal to deal with "inapplicable treaties." President's Address.

This assembly, declared President Guerner of Salvador, summing up in final address, "has displayed an extraordinary spirit of initiative, indeed of boldness. It has created fresh ideas and prepared a far-reaching program of action, it has brought within the sphere of practical realization what a year ago seemed remote ideals."

The prevailing wish for participation of the United States in the League's activities was expressed by Mexico when he said: "In our common conviction this ground finds hope that those sister nations who are yet divided from us will come to join us."

Steps for organization of the nations for concerted action for the world's economic problems were also taken in this session. Immediate attention being given to the proposal for reaching an international agreement to prevent further increases of tariffs for two years.

One prominent feature of the assembly's work was increased participation and influence by Latin American countries in all matters dealing with the League and their organization to act as units in dealing with questions of common interest to their countries. They are determined to seek to bring other non-American countries actively into the League work.

The aggressive program of the Wilson Labor Government made itself throughout the session in the pressing forward of the same proposal for hastening disarmament, improved economic relations between states and solving problems in the social and human spheres.

E. S. Adherence to Court.

The Assembly made definite steps toward forming a connection between the League work and the United States when it unanimously adopted the protocol for the adherence of that country to the Court of International Justice. Forty-one countries have signed this document. The adherence of the United States is expected in League time and this is viewed as a great advance in consolidating the means for abolishing war, establishing world peace.

Concluding his final remarks, Dr. Wu said "it has been revealed that the singular experience that cruel man's enemies are against that enemy alone of Nations has underlined his right. It nourishes hatred of war, it knows no devotion to the general interest and welfare of all. You have a right

Even when there is well-intentioned regulation it is cumbersome and inefficient. Where the corporation is protected by a long-term franchise, all attempts at effective service are met with dilatory tactics and with an avalanche of highly-paid valuation and accounting experts and technicalities which the public authorities have neither the money, talent nor ability adequately to meet.*The difficulty of maintaining the character of service required through commission orders and judicial proceedings makes for steady evasion and deterioration in service. You cannot successfully conduct a business enterprise through a succession of judicial orders and decrees."The foregoing from the signed statement of Samuel Untermyer, noted New York lawyer published in the Post-Dispatch Sept. 1, advancing the giving of franchises to public utilities hereafter and recommending the prompt form of operation for them, might well have been written with an intimate knowledge of the situation in St. Louis."Dilatory tactics" and the succession of commission orders and court decrees through which the utilities have gained their ends of higher valuations and increased rates have cost the people of this city, in the 11 years since 1918, more than $1,000,000 over and above the charges paid through application of the rate increases.*The public utilities are required by the State Public Service Commission to pay the cost of all valuation proceedings in connection with applications for higher rates, but the commission permits them to include such costs in the operating expense, which comes out of rates paid by the public and over and above which they are permitted to earn—7 per cent or more on their valuation.*These costs include the commission's expenses for engineers, accountants and investigators, as well as the company's own expenses for its lawyers, fees and expenses experts and witnesses used in presenting its case—all to be recovered in the same manner, through rates rated by the public.*Thus the consumers pay the cost not only of the commission's investigation to determine whether higher rates are justified, but also of the utility companies' efforts to prove their need of more fares.*In the last 11 years the constant succession of rate and valuation cases involving the four principal utilities—street railway, electric, gas and telephone—has imposed upon the public such direct costs as an amount estimated at more than $1,000,000. In addition, there is an indirect cost to the people through the expense incurred by the commission in its hearings.*To say that you have labored nobly in this great cause."*Proposals for Revision of League Covenant.

It will have before it proposals by the British and Peruvian delegations for extension of the covenant. These proposals provide amendments of Articles XII, XIII, XV of the covenant, eliminating from them all authorization of war except as an international weapon to enforce observance of the pledges of the Kellogg pact and the covenant itself.*Opposition to the Chinese proposal sprang from the fear that it might open a door to demands for revisions of the treaties of Versailles, the Trianon and St. Germain. —Municipal Research Bureau Points Out How to Increase Revenue.

As showing the need for a uniform and systematic method of fixing assessed valuations on St. Louis real estate, the Bureau of Municipal Research has made public a comparison between assessed valuations and sale prices in 247 real estate transactions.

The comparison includes reality in all parts of the city, and it shows that the highest ratio of assessment to sale price is in the downtown district, bounded by Franklin avenue, Nineteenth and Walnut streets.

In the downtown district, 29 sales were compared, and the total sales prices was ascertained to be $6,152,400, while the total of assessed valuations was $4,027,611, or 65 per cent of the sales price.

In the central section east of Grand boulevard, and north of Walnut street, excluding the downtown area named, 23 transactions were compared with the assessments, and the ratio of valuation to sales price was found to be 57 per cent.

In the central district east of Grand and south of Walnut, a study of 40 cases showed an average ratio of 54 per cent of valuation to sales price.

In the central section west of Grand and north of Market street (Market-Clayton) 22 sales were compared, and the total sales price averaged 49 per cent of the sales price.

In the central section west of Grand and south of Market-Clayton, 32 cases were examined, and the ratio of valuation to sales price averaged 48 per cent. In the extreme southern part of the city, the comparison of 27 cases showed valuations to average 45 per cent of sales price.

The commission has pending on its docket 139 cases, of which 48 have been heard and are under submission for decision. The others are awaiting hearings or other disposition. Less than half of the cases under the commission's supervision have been included for a permanent rate base and many of the valuations made in the past have not been brought up to date, due to the commission's small staff.

As a partial relief for this situation, the last Legislature increased the commission's appropriation for the current biennial period by $250,000, but this will not enable it to catch up with its work.

The commission's expenditures are limited to its appropriation, and, despite the fact that it charges the expenses of valuation and rate cases to the utilities involved, which in turn recover the amount from the consumers, it cannot afford to go along this line after its current appropriation is exhausted.

Some of the larger and more involved cases come from St. Louis, and these cases usually require six months to a year and a half for decision, and usually the city, finding the decision adverse to its claims in the public interest, appeals to the courts for review. This means further delay. For instance, the city has only recently reached the State Supreme Court with its appeal from the street railways valuation of $63,500,000 and the 8-cent fare, although, in the meantime, this fare having been in effect more than a year, has been reduced to 7 cents.

Transactions used in the comparison by the Bureau of Municipal Research says, "were selected at random, and were scrutinized or verified to determine whether the consideration represented a fair, bona fide sale. All classes of commercial, industrial and residential uses and vacant lots, were included."

In its bulletin, "Mind Your Business," the bureau says of the results of its survey:

"Equalization of assessed value of all real estate on the basis of approximately 65 per cent of the sale value, together with the non-increase in rents, other revenue sources would provide the present tax rate, an increase of more than $1,000,000 annually during the next five years."

"The adoption of a uniform method of assessing property would not necessitate any constitutional or statutory changes. Adjustment of high and low valuations to the approximate average can therefore be started immediately, pending the completion of the valuation for the entire city. If this were done the results should provide an increase in the revenues in the future," the President said.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always stand for the people, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Franchise Fight.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WISH to congratulate you on the great service you have rendered to St. Louis and the residents of the city and their posterity. Those who come after us, I am sure, will appreciate in a striking and permanent manner the fight you made in opposition to the perpetual charter sought by the Public Service Co. Were it not for your vigorous and far-seeing opposition to that scheme, I am afraid that it would have carried through. In that case, St. Louis could never again be in control of its transportation problems. Have we a right to blind future generations in the matter of the city's progress and expansion? No, we have not!

The "dead hand" should not be in control of its public utilities. Your paper has made plain the way we should go, and has shown us the way to avoid future mistakes. The city of Detroit is a shining example for us, and for all municipalities in America. The Terminal Association has been a great handicap and a hindrance to the growth and progress of St. Louis, but can we get rid of it? It seems not. That is one very great mistake we have made. Let us not make any more like it. You have waked us up. "Watch the grafters" is the watchword.

Taxes of Small Property Owners.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTE in Saturday's paper a discussion of taxes and assessments. Now you are really taking an honest view of the situation as you do in all of your public decisions, no matter what they are. About five years ago I suggested a piece of property with two frontages. The house, a two-family affair, is situated on a lot 17x55 and a lot 33x55 is used as a lawn. I bought this property on time payments (all paid now). My taxes are $7.00 on a $1220 property.

Don't you think they are overdoing it on the small property owner?

A Gastonia Discussion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE read in the Post-Dispatch—in trial of textile workers and union organizers in North Carolina. Back in April they organized and led a strike against wages as low as $5 and $10 a week for a 12-hour day under a terrible speed-up system. Today they are being tried for their lives!

Those readers of the Post-Dispatch who are interested in this North Carolina trial, in the kidnappings and clubbings of workers, in the struggle for the unionization of the South, should come to the mass meeting being given on Friday evening, Sept. 27, 8 p. m. at the Crunden Branch Library Auditorium, Fourth and Cass avenue, when the subject "The Frame-up of the Workers in Gastonia, N. C." will be discussed.

THE WORKERS OF ST. LOUIS.

Call for a Diagnosis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent interview you're vacillating Major said: "I don't know what my opinions are. I want to do some thinking about it." Will the Post-Dispatch "trouble" reporter on think tanks kindly diagnose this? "I" and "we" the public what it is and which it is?" Watch 'em, St. Louis, and don't overlook the good work the Post-Dispatch is doing.

Now That's Settled.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I RECENTLY saw a positive statement in a St. Louis newspaper to the effect that the bell in the City Hall was rung when war was declared with Spain." This is an error—the bell on the City Hall was rung when war was declared with Spain. If you will look through the files of your paper you will find where the six "young ladies" employed in the City Hall at that time, ranging from the ages of 16 to 20 years, walked an eighty-foot girder and climbed the iron spiral stairs to the belfry and struck the bell with a long iron rod—each girl giving it several resounding whacks. I think it was the first signal followed by ringing of bells, blowing of whistles and a tremendous noise all over the city. Holland Revis, a young man, I believe, was the leader, and as the men of the hall styled him, the abetter of the act.

The hall was unfinished and if our foot had slipped we would have plunged to the basement. It was a surprising act, as each of these young ladies, though young, had heavy family responsibilities and took life very seriously—but was so stirred with patriotism she forgot everything else. One young lady became frightened and we had considerable difficulty in getting her back over the girder—she crawling on her knees the full length.

ANOTHER FRANCHISE FRAUD EXPOSED.

One after another the reasons why the street railway company should have a new franchise are proved to be nothing better than attempts to deceive the people of St. Louis. The latest of these frauds to be exposed is that unless the franchise is granted the company will not be able to refund some $36,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds falling due in 1934. Mayor Miller said in an interview with the Post-Dispatch last week:

I want to get some expert advice on the financial side of this question. I want to find out whether the company will be able to refinance that bond issue which falls due in 1934.

Naturally, this would depend upon the owners of the bonds. It has been represented time and again that the owners of the bonds may not care to renew them, or that they may want an unreasonable rate of interest, or that the railway company might be thrown into receivership by foreclosure of this loan. All these dreadful bugaboos have been conjured up to intimidate the community, and Mayor Miller's statement to the Post-Dispatch shows how effective they have been. Financing the company has at last become the Hindenburg line of the franchise grabbers; but the hypocrisy of these representations has been exposed by the testimony of other cities which have found that the utilities do very well without franchises and have no difficulty in financing themselves.

It develops now that the street railway company is itself the mythical Shylock who will demand his pound of flesh in 1934.

When the company emerged from receivership under the present ownership the amount of these bonds outstanding was $36,300,000. Since then, and up to Dec. 31, 1928, there had been retired $1,258,000 of this issue, leaving outstanding $35,042,000. Bonds of this issue amounting to $15,000,000 face value were acquired by the company or its reorganization committee and deposited with the First National Bank in St. Louis as security for a loan of $9,844,663 made by a group of banks including the First National. Both the chairman of the board and the president and 10 other officers or directors of this bank are part owners of the street car company, some holding common stock in the Public Service Co., and others holding stock in the City Utilities Co., the holding company that controls the street car company.

From one of his eminent experience and understanding the suggestion must be heard with respect. And there are other indications of its validity. It is known, for example, that large capital in New York, New Orleans and the Ohio Valley has been flirting with the idea of acquiring the Federal barge line on the Lower Mississippi. At various times rumors have started that one or another St. Louis group was ready to take over the barge line. Each time the rumors have been exploded, but it is not difficult to understand their plausibility. St. Louis is the logical place for such a movement to originate. It has the location, the capital and the opportunity.

the President's Cabinet, which he does not account for but simply accepts, has added hop to his fast one and a sharper break to his curve. We are assuming that his dancing figures are correct, but if accuracy in this instance was subordinated to the spirit of the occasion the digression from the straight and narrow was so gayly and gallantly done that the Puritan will forgive, while the Cavalier shouts "Bravo!"

There was poetry in Mr. Hyde's apotheosis of the cow; there was vision, humor, charm—all the elements, indeed, which in their ensemble, constitute beauty. It was the best speech made by any Secretary of Agriculture since Alexander Hamilton, or before.

WAKE UP, ST. LOUIS!

It was a tremendous picture which James E. Smith of St. Louis outlined in Monday's Post-Dispatch. Mr. Smith was one of the first to grasp the immense potentiality of the Mississippi system for making seaports of every city on the river and its tributaries. Large through his efforts, and those of others inspired by his vision, thousands of miles already have been prepared for cheap barge transportation, and more thousands are to be ready in the next few years.

Now, if ever, he urged, St. Louis must seize the opportunity of its location, near the confluence of the Mississippi to New Orleans and the sea, the Missouri to the great Northwest, the Ohio to industrial Pennsylvania and the Illinois to Chicago and the Great Lakes. This, says Mr. Smith, is the greatest ultimate value offered any American city, but its ultimate values will be lost unless St. Louis, now and not "tomorrow," organizes its own barge line. Already, he protests, St. Louisans have shown neglect in this direction.

From one of his eminent experience and understanding the suggestion must be heard with respect. And there are other indications of its validity. It is known, for example, that large capital in New York, New Orleans and the Ohio Valley has been flirting with the idea of acquiring the Federal barge line on the Lower Mississippi. At various times rumors have started that one or another St. Louis group was ready to take over the barge line. Each time the rumors have been exploded, but it is not difficult to understand their plausibility. St. Louis is the logical place for such a movement to originate. It has the location, the capital and the opportunity.

ANOTHER NEW POSTAGE STAMP.

Looking at the new postage stamps as fast as they come out will give one a thorough education in the minor points of American history. A few weeks ago we learned about the Sullivan expedition, and now the battle of Fallen Timbers is immortalized. It is just exactly 135 years since "Mad Anthony" Wayne defeated the Indians in that engagement in Ohio, so we have a new 2-cent stamp. Gen. Wayne's principal claim to fame is the capture of Stony Point in the Revolution, but for some reason this minor exploit is commemorated. Another issue, to celebrate the canalization of the Ohio River, is scheduled for appearance soon. Perhaps it is only a coincidence that the Postmaster-General comes from Ohio.

Perhaps it is more than a mere sentiment for trivial anniversaries that inspires these many postage stamps. The Postoffice Department, as is well known, suffers from an annual deficit. Some financial wizard of that department may have heard about the 250,000 stamp collectors in the United States.

TOM P. BARNETT.

The late Tom P. Barnett might have been called the Admirable Crichton of St. Louis. He practiced two arts, and succeeded in both. That is not a feat to which an ordinary man is equal.

Mr. Barnett left a rich heritage in both arts.

Raised in a family of architects, he left his own impress upon the profession in many parts of the country.

Many of the things he designed contribute to the interesting and diversified architecture remarked of St. Louis. Perhaps some of the small things he did, such as the little bank building in Locust street, east of Eighth, and the mission insurance building at Compton avenue and Washington boulevard, best suited his fancy.

As a painter he was prolific. His death at the time the River des Peres is being put underground is a coincidence, for the little river in Forest Park, particularly when snow was on the ground and the water only occasionally showed through ice, was his favorite subject.

He was a colorist who saw red in the trees when the sun was setting and enriched everything he did with his love of showy contrast.

He was to visiting painters one of our most interesting artists, as he was to visiting architects one of our most interesting designers. His zest and enthusiasm inspired all that he did, and perhaps no other artist has painted St. Louis so attractively as he did.

What a pity it is that the St. Louis of a time when the city was rich in French and Spanish traditions, and all things bore the patina of another age, did not have a Barnett to hand it down to us in his vigorous and colorful style!

Such was Tom Barnett, a man of rich talent and eternal youth, who one day combined beauty with utility at the drawing board and the next day set up his easel in the snow and painted a charming bit of dancing blue water.

THE FREEDOM OF THE SEAS.

That able English newspaper, the Manchester Guardian, subscribes fully to the American doctrine that the seas must be free. It says that however Englishmen have thrived in the past to the splendid arrogance of the sentiment that Britannia rules the waves, this boast can never be made again. Says the Guardian:

Of all nations we are most dependent on the freedom of the seas—the right of neutral nations by their shipping to feed the people and the factories of this island nation if we are attacked and our supplies threatened. Interest and sentiment alike urge us to accept the American doctrine, which clearly also is in the interest of the world.

Not every Englishman makes this admission, but it nevertheless is the crux of Anglo-American naval disarmament. The interests of nations change, as our own interest in the protective tariff has been changed by a growing foreign trade. So it is with England, one time looking to her own naval forces for security and making the law of the sea what she would. Another time finds her, as the Guardian points out, needful of a principle which she has until now held in contempt.

If there is much sentiment of this sort in England, the task of Premier MacDonald is going to be a great deal easier than has been supposed.

HER LADYSHIP, THE COW.

It was said of somebody whose name has escaped us that he could make statistics interesting. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has a generous quota of that genius. At the dedication of the Arena he decked the cow in all the laurels of laudation. Modest bosom may well have cheered her cud with fine satisfaction as her importance in the scheme of vital things was presented in galloping documents.

Industrially, the cow switches her tail in the face of the whole blooming family. Compared with her, gold, oil, steel—the aristocrats of materialism—are plebeian trailers. All our gold mines, sweating laboriously for every minute of half a century, could equal only one year's economic performance of the cow. We think of the automobile as the classic of American enterprise, and have anointed it with the superlative, greatest, but its tremendous annual total of more than three billions is less, Mr. Hyde assures us, than the value of our milk products.

Gov. Caulfield returned to Jefferson City yesterday in an airplane, but it was nothing like the ride on which he took Jake Newman when he vetoed the terminable permits bill.

THE SKIPPER IS AFRAID OF HIS OWN SHADOW.

The White Australia Policy

Labor holds the whip hand in Australia and therefore controls the country's narrow immigration policy; it is based upon the fear of a yellow invasion, but it operates to exclude peoples having lower standards of living and working, although Australia badly needs industrious colonists; the empire migration scheme is not altogether successful; the net result is a kind of national inbreeding.

By Elizabeth Lord Driemeyer.

SYDNEY, Australia.

T HE White Australia policy, right or wrong, is one of which the country stands admiring. The very effectiveness of enforcing it is the provision requiring the applicant to read a page of any language.

If they want you, they give you English to read, or it might be German; but if not, the seeming hieroglyphics may turn out to be Sanskrit or even Eskimo.

Just as in the case of the tariff and prohibition, in the matter of immigration Australia looks to the United States as an example and determines to profit by our mistakes.

She feels that opening our doors to all the races of the earth, millions of whom have been impossible to assimilate, was a blunder, and that our present attempt to close them to certain nationalities is a arduous and futile gesture.

They consider that judged from the viewpoint of material gains, our policy has been successful. We have become the richest nation in the world, although it must be admitted that our racial composition is not the same as that of the United States. Negroes are never allowed to come in except in the case of some professional entertainers, when a bond must be put up for their return.

The British Empire has devised a plan known as the empire migration scheme, designed to increase the number of the white population of the empire. But after five years, the figures show that the population of Britain has increased by more than a million, the percentage of unemployed remains abnormally high and the number of migrants is less than half the 1910-1914 figure.

In the old days, when the journey was long and arduous, people flocked to the dominions, but in these halcyon days when every inducement is offered to them to migrate they scarcely trickle out to Britain. There would be willing to come to the dominions, but the cost of living is high.

Most Australians demonstrate the affection which Britons feel for the empire, an intense loyalty, perhaps not equaled by the patriotism of any other nation. Australia is 95 per cent British stock and proud of it.

The people are also extremely fond of their own dominion, with more definite ideas of what they will not do than what they will do.

For sentimental reasons they prefer that immigrants should be British, or at least Nordic. But the most important reason for the white Australia policy is economic.

It is the natural attitude of labor, and in a country such as that where labor holds the whip hand, they can enforce it.

There are probably no other countries in the world where the force of labor wield the power that they do in Australia, and naturally conditions are pretty much as they choose to have them.

Likewise, as any student of human nature could predict, the more they get the less they give. While they can keep out cheaper labor they have a sinecure, but any influx of Oriental or South European workers would mean competition which they do not care to meet.

While there is much to be said in a country such as Australia or the United States for the exclusion of races having a lower standard of living and working, it nevertheless follows that without any such competition the Anglo-Saxon falls down on the job. Or it fails to come to pass in Australia. They don't want to do any more work than necessary themselves and they are opposed to letting in the people who will work harder than they do.

The yellow peril is Australia's chief bugaboo.

In answer to any mention of the possible letting down of immigration barriers, one always hears that in such an event the country would be swamped by the yellow hordes who are

Worth Reading If—

A CURIOUS LIFE. By George Wehner. (Horace Liveright.) It may be just as well to "get the words over with," at once by stating boldly that "A Curious Life" is the autobiography of a famous "spirit medium." The statement will divide most of those who have read it into three general groups: First, those who reject unconditionally the idea involved; second, those who accept the idea unconditionally; third, and this is no doubt a small group, those who suspect that neither of the other two groups really knows what it claims to know. In any case there is a vast amount of psychic phenomena recorded by scientifically trained observers: unfortunately not all of his statements have been explained by orthodox science, though there have been and are eminent scientists who have accepted the spiritual hypothesis as proven. Sir William Crooker was one; Sir Oliver Lodge another, to name only two of an imposing list.

The third group mentioned, though greatly impressed by his list, would point out the fact that a scientific theory may be valid without being correct; in fact it seems to agree with the known phenomena. Other valid theories are possible. Claude Bragg, for instance, would accept the phenomena as genuine, but his explanation would be quite unlike that of Crookes and Lodge; though, granting certain ways of thinking about time and space that seem to be supported by mathematics, his explanation would be strangely persuasive. Furthermore, it would seem to agree surprisingly with certain concepts of accredited scientists like Eddington and J. S. D. Watson.

At any rate, enough is definitely known about psychic phenomena to arouse the lively suspicion in those who have been exposed to the facts that genuine human progress is more likely to be achieved by moving in that general direction than in any other: for the inquiry is somehow concerned with the very meaning of human life and the justification for human effort. Surely orthodox science, for all the benefits it has conferred upon the world, is finding no livable meaning and giving no justification whatever. Rather, the contrary is true. Some day when the present communal obsession shall have passed—if in the meantime too great a catastrophe has not befallen us—our orthodox science may turn in the direction suggested, no longer refusing to consider the which can neither be measured nor weighed. #### TO BE CREMATED TOMORROW

The body of Tom P. Barnett, widely known St. Louis architect and artist, who died Monday night in Boston, will be cremated tomorrow morning at Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., in accordance with his last wishes. Arrangements for interment will not be made until Mrs. Barnett returns to St. Louis Friday evening.

Mr. Barnett, who was 59 years old, had been suffering with diabetes for about a year and was taken seriously ill a few days before his death at his summer home at Rockport, Mass., where he was staying with Mrs. Barnett. Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons and two daughters by a former marriage.

He was president of the Tom P. Barnett Co. in the Arcade Building and lived at 3822 Lindell boulevard where he maintained a studio.

EAST AND WEST OF JORDAN.

By Alfred Field Gilmore. (The Stratford Company.)

When Alfred Field Gilmore went journeying to the Holy Land he made a record of his observations and impressions. When he came back he wrote a book. It is an entertaining description of the land and its people, of interest and value to Bible students. His trip also included Egypt, Transjordania and Syria.

NEW PLAYS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN. Edited by Anna M. Lutkenhaus and Margaret Knox. (The Century Co.)

The volume, similar to a previous one prepared by the same editors, contains 16 plays and exercises which have been used in the young school teacher on Stony Man mountain. For the most part it is a simple narrative of the home life of the transplanted Germans, speaking in the adopted drawl of the Southland. There is a culminating episode when the young school teacher falls into the hands of cave moonshiners, that may have been dramatized by the author from a local tradition.

Pilot Regains Bearing and Governor Arrives Safely at Capital

From St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 25.— Gov. Caulfield returned to the capital from St. Louis by airplane yesterday, making the flight in a plane of the Shell Oil Co. The plane was lost in fog near St. Louis for half an hour, after leaving Lambert-St. Louis Field, but made the trip without mishap.

After the plane left Lambert-St. Louis Field, it was to circle Scott Field before starting for Jefferson City, but poor visibility resulted in the plane getting off its course. A half hour later the pilot lost his bearings over Jefferson Barracks and flew directly to Jefferson City.

Gov. and Mrs. Caulfield and their daughter, Miss Jane Caulfield, and Mrs. Herbert S. Hadley, widow of the late Gov. Herbert S. Hadley, who is visiting the Caulfields at the executive mansion, made brief flights in the plane after it arrived in Jefferson City, and in a "blimp" of the Goodyear Rubber Co.

It will soon be time to plant.

Why not drive out to the Westover Nursery Company at 8500 Olive Street, Rockwood, and let expert gardeners help you select plants for your home grounds, or if this is not convenient send for the 80-page descriptive illustrated catalog, which is free. Retired Officer Was Designer and Builder of Locks and Dams for Project.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.— Gen. Harry Fiske Hodges, retired, spoken of by Major-General George W. Goethals as "the genius of the Panama Canal," died suddenly of a heart attack last night at his home in Lake Forest. He was 69 years old.

In 1901, the then Lieutenant-Colonel Hodges was with Major-General Wood of the American army of occupation in Cuba, serving as chief engineer. Six years later he went with Goethals to the Canal Zone, spending seven years there designing and constructing the locks and dams.

He served as commanding officer of the Atlantic coast artillery until 1917.

At the declaration of war by the United States, Hodges was commanding the Seventy-sixth Division at Camp Devens, Mass., and he led that unit overseas.

Two daughters and a son, all of Lake Forest, survive.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.

THE gourmets in New York find a thousand and one gastronomic thrills. Every famous restaurant features a special dish to delight the epicure. And there are many out-of-way haunts known only to those who have been to New York. Brooklyn has an obscure hole in the wall where the snails in the shell are cooked in garlic sauce just as in Paris. West street has a lunch counter where steaming, heavy onion soup is served at sumptuous prices. Stayups found it and are trickling there.

A French restaurateur serves a select clientele at his home near Lyndhurst, L. L., and offers famous dishes of Europe along with choice wines and liquors. Many who know New York has the widest range of food of any city in the world.

A man whose life has been spent largely in chasing culinary surprises and who in gouty invalidism likes to recall culinary yesterdays has turned over a brief list of favorite dishes. They are his choices—not mine—but might perk up a jaded appetite.

Buttered chicken hash at the Lafayette; chili at Chilli Villa; frog legs at Den Rival; French pastry at the Savoy; roast goose at the Savoy; sandwich at Feathers; special combination salad at Beefsteak Charlie's; and chicken Eugenie at Colony.

Chicken consomme and coffee ice cream at Schrafft's; coffee and sweet fruits at Lindy's; waffles at Alice Foot's MacDougal's; steaks at Archambault's; mixed grill at Keene's; roast sausage at Dinty Moore's; special combination salad at Beefsteak Charlie's; and chicken Eugenie at Colony.

"WILD BILL" MEHLHORN GETS LICENSE TO WED DANCER

She Obtained Third Divorce and Restoration of Maiden Name in East St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—William E. Mehlhorn, known as "Wild Bill," professional golf player residing at Hotel Algonquin, and Velva L. Raines, formerly of East St. Louis, obtained a marriage license in the Municipal Building here Monday.

They said they would be married this day but refused to disclose their arrangements or their plans following their marriage. Mehlhorn is 30 years old; Miss Raines, 24.

Velva Iva Raines obtained her third divorce and restoration of her maiden name last Friday in City Court at East St. Louis, leaving immediately for New York. Mehlhorn formerly was professional at the North Hills Country Club here.

She resided with her mother, Mrs. Pole Raines, at 1256 North Forty-seventh street, until her death a year ago, but spent most of her time in New York, where, as Virginia Ray, she appeared as a toe dancer and a member of musical show choruses.

In her last divorce action she testified that she had been deserted by Thomas E. Purcell of New York, four days after their marriage Aug. 2, 1927. She previously had married and obtained divorces from two East St. Louis men.

CITY DETECTIVE FOUND WITH BEER IN HIS AUTO

Arrested and Suspended—Assists in Raid on Place Where He Got It.

City Detective Oscar W. Souties was suspended and locked up last night after being taken in custody by Federal prohibition agents as he drove away from a barroom at 3848 West Pine boulevard with a case of beer—a gift from the proprietors.

Souties, who thus lost not only his beer but also temporarily his badge, revolver and job, returned to the saloon with the agents, helping them to raid the place and arrest the reputed owners, Joe McCarthy, described as a professional soccer player, and Neil Boyle, son of a city detective and Federal narcotics inspector who died several years ago.

Three prohibition agents reported they were watching the saloon, because of complaints, when the city Detective Souties came out, put a carton in his car and drove away. They stopped him and seized the carton, which they said contained 24 pint bottles of homebrew. Souties pleaded: "I'm a police officer, give me a break," they added.

Leading the agents back to the saloon, Souties gave three short raps on the door, followed by a pause and a single rap. The door was opened, the premises searched, whisky, gin, beer and alcohol seized, and Boyle and McCarthy arrested.

Souties was booked for transportation and possession of beer. Boyle and McCarthy for possession. In police work since 1922, Souties is 37 years old and resides with his family at 7615 Virginia avenue. He was attached to the detective bureau at the Laclede Avenue Police Station. He faces a trial before the Police Board on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Kroger accomplished two important things when he increased the milk content of Country Club Bread.

First—he satisfied the demand for a loaf of greater nutritive value. Second—he supplied a loaf with light, fluffy texture and rich creamy taste that most appeals to children. co-operative organizations and stabilization corporations.

Failure of the board to take effective steps in controlling the present wheat and cotton crops was the principal front on the attack today against Legge and the board.

Brookhart Questions Legge.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, not a member of the committee, was allowed to interrogate the witness.

"The farm bill was passed to take care of the 1929 crop," Brookhart declared.

"Oh, no," Wheeler interjected. "That was merely campaign talk. Senator Brookhart made campaign speeches in Montana and the Dakotas, telling us that Hoover had a scheme all ready for taking care of the 1929 crop, but that was only campaign forgotten after the election." "Unfortunately I can't forget what I promised," Brookhart observed.

Legge clearly indicated that, even when the farmers are organized, the board will not look with favor on purchase of exportable surpluses, which are said to control the American prices of wheat, corn and cotton.

The "set-up," as he called the farmer organizations, would be composed of co-operatives supervised by a marketing or stabilization corporation, which in turn would be the official agent of the Farm Board. Individual farmers would belong to the co-operatives, which would have representatives on the marketing group. Marketing groups have not yet been completely organized, but Legge hoped that one would be functioning for the wheat growers when "next year rolls around."

Progress to Date.

At present 28 wheat co-operatives are seeking to unite into a common group with the board's help. If present plans mature, this marketing group will buy wheat from the farmers, store it in the group's elevators, and sell it when the price is advantageous.

"Now, if this marketing hopes to control the surplus," Wheeler began—"helps to control the surplus," Legge interjected. "Well, if the marketing group buys the surplus," Wheeler continued, "it will dump the surplus on the world market to maintain the domestic price, who would take the loss?" "That is one proposition I cannot get enthusiastic over," Legge replied. "It was on that proposition that several other farm bills were wrecked."

"Oh, no," several Senators interrupted. What wrecked the previous farm bills was the presidential veto.

"You have written laws prohibiting dumping of foreign products in this country and foreign countries would probably protest similar actions on our part," Legge said. "There was no protest from foreign countries against the other farm bills that I know of," Wheeler said.

"Notwithstanding the large surpluses of wheat," Legge continued, "I don't think there is any record of destroying wheat to maintain the price. Corn has been destroyed in Nebraska, but not wheat."

"Wheat has been fed to hogs in the Northwest, and that is one way of destroying it," Wheeler said. "I think that wheat is one of the cheapest feeds for young stock today," Legge declared.

"Let us take cotton as an example," Legge continued, "somehow way the surplus has always been absorbed. There is not a year by year accumulation of carry-over. But if the board undertook to buy the surplus, the carry-over might accumulate every year, and the surplus would increase from 3,000,000 bales the first year to 9,000,000 several years later. The stimulation to production would be responsible."

Brookhart denied that stabilization of price and buying of surplus would stimulate production to an extent of building up an accumulated surplus.

Legge's Idea of Stabilization.

"We could stabilize the price as long as we bought the surplus, but how would we maintain the price at the level?" Legge asked. "By continuing to buy the surplus," Brookhart responded.

Wheeler demanded to know why no stabilization or marketing corporations had been formed when the law stated that the board should take the initiative in the organization.

"We understand that it is the duty of the co-operatives to recommend to the board members for such an advisory committee," Legge answered. "As yet no co-operative has made such recommendations."

"In other words," Wheeler said, "your board has been in existence two months and no advisory committee for wheat has been established and apparently no attempt has been made to organize."

"I sincerely hope that when another year rolls around the farmers will have their own agents in all the world markets," Legge said.

"How about the unorganized farmers, who are two-thirds of the farming population?" Brookhart asked. "Doesn't your board represent them directly and couldn't the board as its agents force the co-operatives to recommend members to the advisory committee?"

Legge said he did not think that the board represented the unorganized farmers. "I hope," he said, "that they will all come into the co-operatives."

Questioned by Wheeler, Legge refused to name the exact number of stabilization corporations or advisory committees that the board hoped to direct.

"We shall seek to have stabiliza-

A Romance of Modern Life

CHAPTER 35.

WHEN the door was closed she ran upstairs, her breath beginning to come fast again, and her eyes bright and feverish with sudden determination. The blue velvet gown came off and was flung carelessly aside; Beatrice tore off slippers and thin stockings and substituted more practical wear.

While she dressed, her old unused key lay on her desk, and she flung it into the drawer needed for Hugh's absence at least. Then she added the little photograph of Marcia and her mother; two lean, smiling women, looking about the same age, in white gowns and hats, in the sunlight of the Panama steamer's deck.

There was a beautiful picture of Hugh on her dresser; Hugh at his dearest. He had had it taken not long after their marriage; no one else had a copy of this particular pose. Beatrice had selected it as her favorite, and hers in a special sense, it had become.

She looked at this picture tonight, and her breast heaved. But she put it aside. There was another picture of Hugh—the picture this one had replaced. It had been temporarily shelved in her closet; she found it and slipped it into her bag instead. It wouldn't do to let him know.

Her warm gloves, her heavy fur coat, she was ready. She pulled up the bottom, snapped off the dressing room light. At the same moment there was a footstep in the hall, and somebody came into the bedroom. Her heart stopped beating. Hugh! She was too late.

But it was not Hugh. It was old Nelly, amazed and tousled and sleepy.

"Nelly," Beatrice said, in an electric whisper, her heart resuming its normal beat by painful degrees.

"For Heaven's sake! You ain't going out now!" Nelly said, stupefied.

"Only—only as far as Mrs. Challoner's." Beatrice said quickly. "And, by the way, would you call me a car, Nelly?"

"The front door blew open," the maid said. "I didn't even feel the draft blowin' through the house. So when I seen the lights in your room, and I thought maybe you weren't home yet. Had ye better go out as late as this? It's after three!" Nelly reminded her.

"Oh, yes, please, I must. And if Mr. Challoner comes in, please say that I'm at his mother's." Beatrice said quickly and decidedly.

"I'll get into my clothes and take you there. I'd never leave you go at such an hour as this!" Nelly averred after a puzzled silence.

"No, indeed, you won't do that!" Beatrice refused her.

"I'll call Noon, then; he won't be asleep by this time!" the old servant persisted stupidly.

"Nelly," Beatrice pleaded, feeling that in another minute she would cry, that Hugh would come home, that everything would be lost. "You can't understand. Mr. Challoner and I have had a—she discarded the ugly words fight and quarrel; they sounded like living over a grocery—"a very serious disagreement," she said breathlessly and quickly. "I'm going away—I'm going to his mother. You mustn't stop me."

"Where's Mr. Hugh now?" Nelly demanded.

"I don't know. Mr. Bert and Mrs. Kavanaugh were mixed into it—he may be with Mrs. Kavanaugh for all I know." Beatrice said recklessly, frantic to escape. "But wherever he is, I don't want to be here when he comes back." "You'll be back tomorrow?" Nelly asked, considering.

"Oh, yes—surely!"

"Just give me time to get into my coat and shoes, and I'll take you over to Mrs. Challoner's," the maid offered.

Beatrice hesitated; an odd look narrowed her eyes for a minute. Nelly's room was on the third floor, at the back of the house.

"Well, hurry, then!" she said.

"There's just one thing," Nelly said, turning in the very act of departure, "are you still you ain't makin' a terrible mistake?"

Beatrice could smile, shakily, impatiently.

"It is possible that you don't understand the situation at all. Nelly, she asked.

"Well, of course, I know that," admitted Nelly, hurt.

"Isn't it possible that the one thing Mr. Hugh wants is to have me get out?" Beatrice pursued stubbornly.

But here Nell was stubborn, too.

"No, ma'am, that isn't possible!" she asserted firmly. "I've known Mr. Hugh Challoner, man and boy, for 34 years. Nelly went on, rising slowly to her tone of droning narrative. "I've never seen him in all those years—was like he was then this last year. His mother seen it, and his sisters seen it—that's fifty or no fifty—he was getting at last what he'd never gotten before in his life!"

"Well, these violets and primroses he brought you every day of the world, when you sick here, last winter. 'We girls in the kitchen used to look

Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

GOING FORWARD.

THE little black clock was standing on the desk in the back hall when the children were going to bed.

He put out his hands and waved to them.

"Hello, hello, hello," he called. "Remember, my magic never gives out. What about my turning myself way ahead tonight?"

"Gee! That would be great."

John said.

"How far ahead?" the little black clock asked.

"Well, maybe a couple of hundred years," John suggested.

"Come along! A couple of hundred years it shall be!" the little black clock said.

He got down from the desk, his short legs managing very well.

"Why, where are we?" Peggy asked.

"I just turned the time ahead a couple of hundred years," the little black clock said, laughing. "What's below?" John asked.

"That little place down below," he repeated. "Don't you see?"

"Do you mean the earth?" the little black clock said.

"I mean the little place with the little houses and the little fences and the little fields. It looks like a toy village," John explained.

"That's the earth," the little black clock said.

"Is it a hotel?" Peggy asked.

"It's so huge."

"Is it at the top of a mountain?" asked John.

"No," said the little black clock. "We're not at the top of a mountain. And yes, I suppose you would call this a hotel. In fact, it's called a hotel—an air hotel, and one of the finest we could have."

"An air hotel?" the children repeated.

"You wanted to go forward, didn't you? Well, we've come to one of the leading air hotels—and the earth is down below."

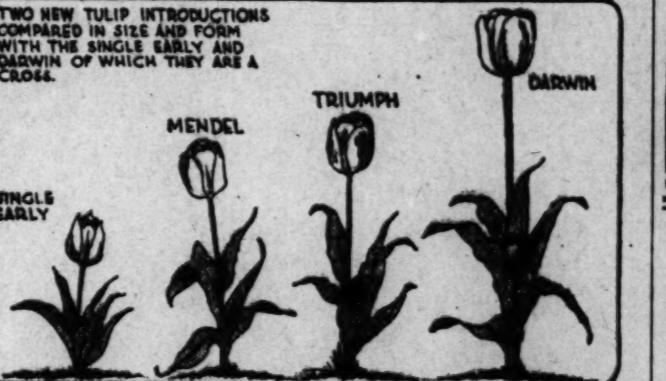

Peggy and John were almost beside themselves with excitement.

"This is simply marvelous," they said.

THE GARDEN IN THE AUTUMN

(National Garden Bureau.)

TWO NEW TULIP INTRODUCTIONS COMPARED IN SIZE AND FORM WITH THE SINGLE EARLY AND DARWIN OF WHICH THEY ARE A CROSS.

NEW TULIP FAMILIES DEVELOPED

NEW races of tulips seldom come into commerce because of the length of time required to develop such a strain. One to a generation is about all that can be accomplished, the last being the famous and popular Darwins.

A tulip requires six years to bloom from seed and growing from seed is the only means of originating new types. In six years only a single cross-breed of variety is developed and five more years are required for its propagation into sufficient stock to offer.

Recently there have been introduced in Europe two new tulip types, the Mendels and the Triumphs. The Mendels are the result of crossing the little extra early Duc von Thol tulips that come with the crocuses but are now seldom grown because of their small size, and the Darwins. The Triumphs originated from crosses of the single early class with the Darwins. The newcomers give early season tulips of Darwin form and with much longer stems than the old time early types.

The Triumphs carry the single early season well over into that of late tulips. Sir Daniel Hall, an English authority, who has recently written the most comprehensive book on the tulip in the English language, says that many of these two types might well be classed as Darwins, except for their earlier season of bloom.

These tulips have been raised and named and they are also offered in mixtures.

So far as tried out in the United States, they are considered an excellent addition to the tulip races with a wide range of colors. They are of particular value for forcing indoors, giving earlier season Darwins for the cut flower trade. The Darwins take their time about being forced while the single earlies and usually brought into bloom but because of their short stems are chiefly valuable for pictures. In the new races, early tulips with good stems are now available for florist use.

There are a few new Darwins finding their way into general commerce. Important among these are new pure whites, a color lacking in the Darwin-class previously, as the older whites were tinted.

Brown Nut Bread

Add to two cups of unsifted flour, one cup pastry flour, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one teaspoon baking powder. Dissolve one and one-half teaspoons baking soda in two cups buttermilk. Mix gradually with the dry ingredients.

Stir in one cup chopped walnuts or pecans. Turn into a buttered bread pan, cover and let stand for 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. This completes the luncheon planned above.

Beat, rather than stir, cake batter.

MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

SEPTEMBER REFLECTIONS

Now that Paris divorces have been marked down to $395 (from $2000), it might be real economy for a woman to get two at a time, just to have one as a spare, in case of the next "flop."

Many a man who couldn't be coaxed into marriage by a hesitating angel, has been rushed into it by an enterprising little "fool."

It is always the man who was "through the women," at twenty, that develops into the kind who is not anywhere near through with them at fifty.

Remove a man's collar, and you remove his dignity, most of his beauty, and all of his "civilization."

No married man ever lets his wife know how ill he is when she's away at the seashore; partly for fear he'll spoil her vacation—and partly for fear she'll rush back and spoil HIS.

When a man is so good that a woman never has to force him to do anything that he ought to do, somehow, she feels cheated out of her divine right to be his "guiding influence."

Nowadays, when we call them "a devoted couple," we mean a man who is so devoted to golf and a woman who is so devoted to bridge, that they never see each other often enough to get bored with each other.

This is the time of year, when the sand-sheik stops burling about being "elemental and primitive," and begins talking about "giving you up," and getting back to hard work.

It's hard to lose a daughter—yes, and it's getting harder and harder, as the free kissing gets easier and easier.

PARIS MODES TODAY

Special Cable by Pierre LeBauz, Director of the Paris Fashion Board, and E. Winifred Boulter, Associate Director.

PARIS, Sept. 25.

In the matter of the mode, the beginning of the season always creates a little emotion, of which not a small part is curiosity, not to say anxiety. What will tomorrow's style be?

At the present time, one thing is certain and all those who wish a decided change may be satisfied. We are frankly departing from the strictly "sports" type with its straight line, its short skirt and we have been returning for several of the past seasons, but more definitely today, toward a more studied design, more complicated, and in consequence, more sophisticated.

It is fair to admit that Patou has crystallized the evolution. Chanel, following for her winter collection the same inspiration, also gives her authority to the couturiers, and if one or two of the important couturiers have not altogether submitted to it, there is no doubt that the force of the majority will sweep away all remaining resistance.

The high waistline and long skirt have definitely arrived for autumn wear. Patou even suggests the wearing of a corset which, while reducing the size of the hips, emphasizes the bust and raises the waist. O'Rosen lengthens even sports suits and tailored coats. But it is, of course, as applied to evening wear, that this change of line receives its most complete expression. Without hesitation, without moderation, the evening skirts falter sweep the ground at intervals or all around, sometimes with transparent effects which half veil the leg under tulle or delicate lace.

If we add to this bright outline the vogue of blouses tucked into skirts, and of short and three-quarter coats, we will have an idea of the principal new tendencies of the mode.

There are innumerable materials in favor, of which we can describe only a few. Among the woolens may be cited the tweeds, remarkably rough, with irregular threads, with mixed colors, the "boucles," the novelty "burses" much used with matching jerseys, the broadcloth, woolen velour and duvetine, which hold the leading place for the classical type of coat. Among lighter woolens there are kashas, under a new form, wool crepes, under a new form, wool crepes, and the violets, beginning with the dahilia color finish with amethyst and plum. This is by no means to say that blue and red are no longer worn, nor that yellow has been placed among the souvenirs of the past. It is only necessary to know the imagination of the French couturiers to realize that the palette of infinitely rich shades and tones in which they always love to create is as richly varied as ever.

"UNEXPECTED" IN FAMILY BUDGET

A GREAT deal of worry over what seems to be "unexpected" household expenses need be foreclosed if some recognition were made of them in the annual budget. Sickness, new clothing needed, replacements of furnishings, repairs to the car, entertainments, and obligatory gifts are among the commonest of the supposedly unpredictable expenses that often upset the budget.

The exact cost of medical care will, of course, be unknown, but if an average of several years back be taken, a tentative monthly allowance can be assigned for "health." If this is left to accumulate when unused, the visits of the doctor need not cause financial consternation. A definite sum, not to be exceeded, can be allowed each one in the family for "drinking." This will be necessary or unusual, previous experience has indicated to be necessary. The purchases of the more expensive articles like coats and suits can be planned for the months that are otherwise least heavily burdened. Similarly, the cost of running a car for a year can be estimated and distributed. Limited allowances for gifts, vacations, and entertainment can be made, provided the members of the family co-operate in adhering to them.

The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture suggests a good way to make a plan for a yearly budget. Use a large double sheet of paper, dividing it into 12 vertical columns, one for listing the 10 usual groups of expenditure—food, housing, operating, furnishing and equipment, clothing, health development, personal, automobile, and savings—and one for each month of the year in which to enter estimates of expenditures in each one of these groups. The bureau will be glad to send you a detailed list of what may be included under each head, though the needs of every home are different.

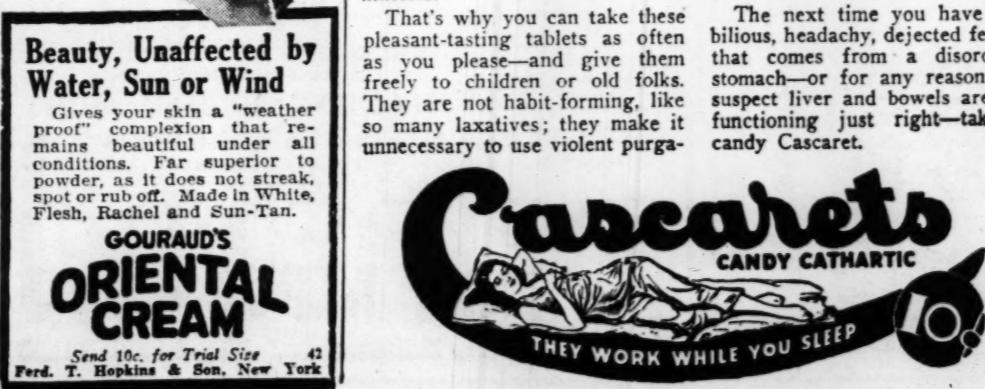

Certain fixed expenses, like payments on house, insurance premiums, telephone bills, and many others occur regularly in all months. Set them down in the proper columns. Divide your annual allowances for other expenditures in the same way, estimating them as best you can by what that department of living cost you last year if you kept a record. This annual spending plan, when completely filled in, will have to be adjusted to the monthly income. Very often the first plan exceeds the actual income and has to be pruned trees that upset the system and soon call for more.

Cascarets are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with licorice; you simply eat them like candy. Then sleep right on while they are preparing your intestinal tract for a thorough cleansing in the morning. Cascarets never cause discomfort or that nauseous feeling usually associated with laxatives.

That's why you can take these pleasant-tasting tablets as often as you please—and give them freely to children or old folks. They are not habit-forming, like so many laxatives; they make it unnecessary to use violent purgatives.

The next time you have that bilious, headache, dejected feeling that comes from a disordered stomach—or for any reason you suspect liver and bowels are not functioning just right—take a candy Cascaret.

Long and Brilliant Social Year Ahead For the Gay Sets in Washington Life

With a gay season in prospect, Mrs. Herbert Hoover (above) will be kept busy in Washington this winter. Princess Elisabeth de Ligne (right) is the daughter of the Ambassador from Belgium, in whose home many of Washington's most brilliant affairs are held.

BY SUE McNAMARA
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.

WASHINGTON is preparing for the longest and most brilliant social season in years.

Several events contribute to the unusually early opening of the season and its lengthening into late April. President Hoover's electing to stay in the capital all summer kept many important personages here who ordinarily would have gone abroad.

The extra session of Congress delayed many Congressmen and their wives here far earlier than usual.

The visit of Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of England, and his daughter, Isabel, in October, will open the social season off in earnest.

The Hoovers have done more entertaining in six months, say veterans social leaders, than the Coolidges did in seven years. If frosted cakes and fruit punch are not an accompaniment to high heels and tall coats this coming winter, wiseacres will miss their gowns.

The President and Mrs. Hoover have scarcely eaten a luncheon or dinner without guests since March when they gone to a strong social gathering. Their guests have ranged from Cabinet officials and other high dignitaries to newspaper men and officers of the Girl Scouts. They have taken large parties with them on their week-end trips to the President's fishing camp.

Meanwhile, for those no more interested in official entertainment than in capital festivities in general, pated as this coming first winter under the Hoover regime.

While the champagne punch of Taft days cannot return, Washington is wondering if the Coolidge spartan diet of ice water for state receptions will not be supplanted at least by fruit punch.

debutante tea Oct. 19.

This will be given by Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner and will be followed by a second Nov. 9 given by Mrs. William Laird Dunlop. The teas will be at their height around Thanksgiving and debutante balls will punctuate Christmas week with sparkling variety.

Something unusual, too, this year for more mature women is the ball Masque, the first big masquerade Halloween party capital society has had in years.

Miss Caroline Roebling is among the most prominent debutantes who are eagerly preparing for the first debutante tea Oct. 19.

This will be given by Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner and will be followed by a second Nov. 9 given by Mrs. William Laird Dunlop. The teas will be at their height around Thanksgiving and debutante balls will punctuate Christmas week with sparkling variety.

Something unusual, too, this year for more mature women is the ball Masque, the first big masquerade Halloween party capital society has had in years.

An outstanding event of the season is the annual midshipmen's and cadets' ball Christmas night.

Tuck-In Dresses

IF THE tuck-in is the most becoming way of defining the waistline, a very novv type of dress may be had with this factor. One and two-piece frocks are shown slightly bloused at the waistline and trimmed with narrow belts which sometimes cross front and add to the tailored interest of the model. The skirt may even boast a yoke from which the fullness falls in clusters of pleats or very definite circular flares. Such a type of dress is very attractive in black with collar and sleeve facings of color.

A Better Choice.

An oblique clothes boiler will be found more useful than a round one. It will fit better on the garter and be much easier to handle.

WESTERN ENGLISH BANK RATE UP; BRISK STOCK RALLY

Advance Reaches Violent Proportions in About a Score of High-Priced Specialties as Shorts Cover.

BROKERS LOANS SHOW $192,000,000 GAIN

Huge Increase Due to Corporations and Individuals, Funds Supplied by These Rising $234,000,000.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The recovery in stock prices, which set in toward the close of yesterday's market, was resumed today, and carried through to the close. The advance reached violent proportions in about a score of high-priced specialties, which were run up to nearly 25 points, presumably at the expense of an over-crowded short interest. Final quotations generally were around the high levels of the day.

Call money held steady all day at 9 per cent, and time money was still quoted at 9 to 9 1/2. The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in the 6 per cent discount rate. The increase in the Bank of England rate from 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 per cent apparently had been fully discounted by the market. It was not considered likely that it would result in any immediate withdrawal of gold in New York for shipment to London, but it sent $100,000,000 to the Bank of England, which has been held since last week.

The Bank of England has been able to check the possibility of further gold imports here, and probably will check the flow of gold from England.

Frances and Germany, Loans Up $192,000,000.

Loans to brokers and dealers by New York Federal Reserve member Banks for the week ended Sept. 25 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board after the close of market today as $6,761,000, representing an increase of $192,000,000 as compared with the preceding week and establishing a new record for the sixth consecutive week.

The huge increase in the loans was due chiefly to the activity of corporations and individuals who had a total of $6,580,000,000, an increase of $234,000,000 in the week. The loans by the banks for their own account and for the account of out-of-town banks each showed a decrease, the former $22,000,000 and latter $21,000,000.

Columbian Carbon was again the spectacular individual feature in today's market, soaring 29 1/2 points and retaining all but 5 points of its gain.

Commercial Solvents, National Biscuit, Warren Bros., American Water Works, Louisville Gas & Electric, General Electric, Burroughs Adding Machine, United Carbon and Standard Gas & Electric closed 10 to nearly 20 points higher, the last three reaching new high records.

Nearly a score other issues, including American Telephone, American Waterworks, National Lead, Simmons Co., Philadelphia Gas & Electric, Eastman Kodak, U.S. Freight, Auburn Auto, United Aircraft, Pacific Lighting and Western Union showed net gains of 5 points, or more.

Columbia Gas Stock Dividend, U. S. Steel common closed 1 1/2 points higher and Radio and General Motors declined fractionally. Anaconda Copper lost a point in reflection of a speculative decline in the market over the failure of the directors to raise the annual dividend from 7 to 8 1/2 cents this morning. Columbia Gas directors of which announced a 25 per cent stock dividend after the close, sold off nearly 2 points. Marmoreo dropped 12 1/2% to a new low of 13 1/2. Adams Express lost all but a small fraction of its early 30-point gain. Union Pacific dropped 4 1/2 points.

The first 31 railroads to report their August earnings showed a gain of nearly 8 per cent in net operating income over the same period last year. Superior Oil reported an increase of 35 per cent August earnings.

Sterling Is Higher. Foreign exchanges ruled higher, with sterling cables advancing nearly half a cent to $4.857-18 in response to the higher bank rates.

Closing stock prices, with dealer tables and market news, can be found on Pages 43, 44,
